Hodgson takes on powerful new role in cabinet shuffle

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

Last week's cabinet shuffle by Ontario Premier Mike Harris whisked Victoria-Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson into one of the most powerful jobs at Queen's Park.

Hodgson was promoted to chairman of cabinet's management board, which has final say over all spending by each of the government's ministries.

He and the provincial treasurer are seen as right- and left-hand men to the Premier.

In a ceremony Friday morning, Hodgson was also sworn in as Deputy House Leader.

While the moves mean Hodgson gives up his post as Minister of Natural Resources, he has retained his duties as Minister of Northern Development and Mines.

John Snobelen, who was embroiled in a confrontation with teachers' unions over Bill 160 as Minister of Education, has taken over as head of natural resources — looked upon as demotion from the larger education portfolio.

Dave Johnson, the former chair of the management board, has been named the new education minister.

A couple hours after the swearing-in ceremony Friday, Hodgson said he was honoured by the promotion and excited about his new role.

Daycare's fate in parents' hands

CHACE gives parents time to help boost centre's enrollment, reduce debt

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

Parents have been given five months to save Minden's financially troubled CHACE Day Care from being shut down.

During a packed meeting at the centre on Thursday, members of the daycare board voted to postpone closing the facility so parents can help try to boost its lagging enrollment and reduce its deficit.

If the plan doesn't work, the daycare will be forced to close on March 31, 1998 — the end of its fiscal year.

In late September, many who send their children to the centre were taken by surprise when the board told them it was planning to halt its programs on November 21 because of low usage.

To break even, the daycare needs enrollment to sit at 75 to 80 per cent of its capacity.

But for the past two years the number of parents who use the centre has been dropping.

Currently, the daycare, which is room — urged the daycare board to reconsider its decision.

They argued that more could be done to make the daycare viable and that they should be given a chance to help fundraise and find solutions.

"I find this very difficult," said

'In a rural community like this, you really need a facility like this to get kids together ... To shut it down is a travesty.'

licensed for 36 full-time children, is operating at only 30 per cent capacity.

On Thursday evening dozens of parents — seated shoulder to shoulder on tiny plastic children's chairs in the centre's main Gord Monk, whose grandson previously went to the daycare. "When a business gets in trouble they usually try to do something to get out of it instead of saying, 'Bang, that's it. I'm closing my doors.' ... Why did the board not come to parents and say we're in trouble, we need help."

Minden parent Tammy McKelvey asked for a commitment from the board to postpone the closing date.

"We can't (reduce the daycare's deficit) by November 21," she said. "We can't raise this money. It's not there."

Trying to put a positive spin on an unfortunate situation, Moore Falls parent Brian Evans said it was clear by the large turnout that there are many people who care about the daycare and want to help ensure that it remains open.

"What we need to hear from the board is to give us another six months or four months and let's try to make this work," he said.

Singing songs of hope:

Fund-raising CD for cancer hits home for well-known couple

Shortly after the Peterborough Singers decided to release a CD of their music to raise money for cancer research, they found out they have even more of a reason to hope their fundraising effort is successful: the three-year-old son of their director and one of their fellow performers is in the Hospital for Sick Children receiving treatment for cancer. The toddler, James, is the son of Syd and Pam Birrell. Last spring, Pam Birrell learned she had a life-threatening form of breast cancer and spent her summer in chemotherapy. The Peterborough Singers held a fundraising concert to raise money to help pay for some of the Birrells' mounting costs during her treatment, and it's the music from that concert that's being featured on the CD, to be released early next week. Just two weeks ago, as Pam Birrell was finally regaining her strength, they learned of their son James' cancer and the fears for his health. The Birrells are presently in Toronto to be with James; they also have an older daughter and a younger son. The community's hearts and prayers are with the Birrells as well as Syd's parents, Primrose and Bruce Birrell of Soyers Lake. We'll let you know soon how you can purchase a copy of the CD.

We received a letter from Sheri Moss McDonald who's researching the history of Crystal Lake, just south of Kinmount. It's a go: EIC gives green light to add three gyms to HHSS

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

Upgrade work to expand and renovate Haliburton's high school will likely start before the end of the month, now that final approval for the project is one step away.

The nearly $6-million construction project has been on hold while Haliburton's school board waits for the green light to include a triple-gymnasium in the plan.

Last month the province's Education Improvement Commission approved the board building only two new gyms, along with five science labs, a cafeteria and other improvements.

But on Wednesday the EIC reconsidered its position and gave the board "verbal approval" to add the third gym, said Jim Bradley, superintendent of business administration.

Once the board receives the commission's endorsement in writing, it will forward the letter to the Ministry of Education for its final seal of approval.

Now that the EIC supports the expansion project, getting the go ahead from the Ministry should be a formality.

If the board hears from the Ministry this week as expected, it's hoping to begin construction by the end of the month.

Architectural drawings for the project are complete. The start date will depend on when the contractor, Parry Sound-based Morgan Construction, can begin.

Bradley said board officials anticipated the EIC would rule in favour of the third gym.

Earlier the commission supported only two gyms because it believed the board was pushing for the third one to help meet the community's recreational needs rather than for educational programming purposes.

The board re-submitted its construction application, pointing out that all three gyms are necessary to schedule classes for the high number of students who register for phys ed and health each semester.

Construction crews will work throughout the winter to build the gymnasiums, the science wing and a new cafeteria, leaving much of the renovations inside the school for the summer.

Since the gyms will occupy a large portion of the existing parking lot, providing parking spots for staff and students will be a "major problem" the contractor will have to solve early, said Bradley.

A new parking lot will be created adjacent to the school where a large work shed and a house recently sold by the board currently sit.

The board hopes to finish the upgrade work by the end of December 1998.

Youth forum looks for ideas from area's young citizens

Citizens of Haliburton County can show their support for youth by attending a half hour presentation on Sunday, October 19, 1:00 p.m. at the Kinark Outdoor Centre (located off Hwy 118 west of Carnarvon on Queen's Line). Please arrive by 12:45 so the presentation can begin at 1:00 p.m.

The half hour presentation will be the conclusion to the week-end long "Youth Forum". As part of the Forum, the youth will brainstorm what they would like to have happen in Haliburton County. The presentation will give the youth a chance to share their vision and ideas with community members.

Forty one young people, ranging in age from 11 to 19 and representing various backgrounds and parts of the county, are participating in the Forum. The Forum will begin Friday evening and will conclude with the presentation on Sunday. The goal of the Forum is to listen to youth and to help them find the supports they need to create programs/services that they need in Haliburton County.

The Forum has been planned and funded by many partners in the community including: The Rotary Clubs of Minden and Haliburton, The Haliburton County Development Corporation, Haliburton County Outdoor Centres Association, Kinark Outdoor Centre, Northway Travel, Family Services of Haliburton County and the Haliburton Board of Education.

Daycare needs to increase enrollment

"...In a rural community like this you really need a facility like this to get kids together to play together. To shut it down is a travesty."

After a brief, private, discussion nearly two hours into the meeting, board members gave parents what they were asking for.

Board president Gord Schakelaar explained that the closure would be postponed based on the understanding that a committee of parents would develop a plan to help the board address the daycare's deficit and increase its dwindling enrollment.

If both areas can be improved substantially, then it may be possible to keep the daycare open.

"The board did not want to close this daycare. Please understand that," Schakelaar explained. "The board agonized over this decision."

Many of the parents in the room volunteered to join the committee and stayed after the meeting to discuss proposals for saving the daycare.

It looks as though the group has a very tough job cut out for it.

CHACE executive director Dianne Loucks pointed out earlier in the evening that the daycare's low enrollment figures are a reflection of area's still-struggling economy — many families have moved from the county recently, while others no longer require daycare because one or both of the parents are out of work. Others opt for in-home care.

Since 1995, the daycare has taken numerous steps to try to improve its financial picture, including campaigns to attract more users, alterations to the program and staff cuts.

But without enough children to hit the break-even point, the daycare has found itself deeply in the red.

It started its fiscal year in April with an existing deficit of more than $12,000 which had accumulated since the centre's opening a decade ago.

AGONIZING DECISION:

"The board did not want to close this daycare. Please understand that. The board agonized over this decision," said board president Gord Schakelaar, before announcing the closure would be postponed until spring to allow parents to help try to save the facility.

If enrollment remains at current levels, the board is projecting a further deficit of nearly $23,000 by the end of March for a total debt of approximately $35,000.

But parents believe the daycare can be rescued.

A number of them suggested increasing fees, which they said are too low for the programs offered.

One mother noted that CHACE charges less per day than many unlicensed home-care programs.

The rates could be increased, but the daycare has to be mindful of the area's economic situation and maintain affordable rates, said Loucks.

The same mother also recommended that the daycare bring in more flexible hours of operation to better meet the needs of working parents.

"I know of many parents, myself included, who can't use CHACE because the hours are restricted."

Daycare supervisor Wendy Sisson said the centre could increase enrollment by bringing back the toddler program that it discontinued earlier.

She said she was personally approached by parents of three toddlers interested in daycare who couldn't be accommodated and she is aware of a couple other parents who had inquired about enrolling toddlers.

"Yes, there is a need and no we have not got the program running," she said.

As part of the board's decision to postpone the daycare's closure, it said it would start the toddler program again as long as it could register the equivalent of three full-time children.

Parents also recommended launching a more vigorous fundraising campaign along with approving area service clubs for financial assistance.

But while it is important to tackle the daycare's financial problems, raising enrollment is an even more critical issue, pointed out long-time board member Kirsti Reynolds.

She pointed out that it will take a strong, ongoing commitment from parents to try to rescue the daycare.

In the past, she said, the board has had a difficult time attracting volunteers to help out at fundraising initiatives and other activities.

But a number of the parents at the meeting said they had no idea the daycare was in such dire straits.

"I feel it's a rather disgusting lack of communication that in all of the fundraising efforts, I never knew the daycare was in trouble or that it was trying to pay deficits," said a mother.

Now parents are well aware problems facing the daycare, and they have until spring to help try to correct them.

Stanhope hopes to lure manufacturer

PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed at Wednesday's meeting of Stanhope council.

An entrepreneur who used to live in Stanhope wants to return and move his business into the municipality.

Lorne Heise, who formerly operated an electrical contracting business in Stanhope, is hoping to set up an assembly plant in the municipality for a variety of products his new company has invented.

Heise's company, Heat-Line Inc., makes an electrical line that prevents water lines from freezing, as well as other products.

The company is located in Lindsay. But Heise and council are hoping to reach a deal that would see Heat-Line lease a parcel of the municipality's land at Stanhope Airport.

The land is zoned for industrial uses, which is what Heise requires.

However, industrial operations located on the airport land are required to have some relation to the airport or aviation, said clerk-administrator Gerald Bain.

Bain set up a meeting with the municipality's planner, Heise and members of council's airport committee to see whether they can find a way of enabling Heat-Line to relocate to the airport grounds.

If the municipality were able to lease him a three-acre parcel of land for a minimum of 20 years, Heise said he would begin construction on a new plant right away.

"We're prepared to move our business here immediately, if the appropriate piece of land comes up," he told councillors.

While his business falls under the definition of industrial uses, Heise said the operation is "ultra clean." The Stanhope plant would be used primarily for assembly, packaging and research and development for new products.

Heise said he has considered industrial properties in Minden and Dysart, but is more interested in moving the business to Stanhope, where he and his wife still own a property.

Reeve Jock Mavor told Heise

council would try its best to accommodate his relocation plans.

Military invasion

Stanhope's airport will be swarming with military personnel next month as nearly 1,000 soldiers bound for the former Yugoslavia in January use the site as a rest stop en route to training exercises.

Captain Murray Snow of the 2 Canadian Mechanized Brigade Group told councillors the soldiers will stop at the airport grounds to refuel their vehicles and rest as they travel from Pettawawa to the Owen Sound area.

Soldiers will arrive at the airport on November 10, 14, 16 and 21 on their way through the county.

Chute repair

Logging company Tembec has given the municipality a donation of $500 to put towards repair work at the Hawk Lake log chute.

Council appealed to a number of companies in the logging industry for assistance to repair the chute since it reflects the area's heritage.

It's also believed to be one of the only remaining chutes in the country.

OPP officers wanted

Council supported a motion put forward by Lutterworth requesting the province to increase the number of police officers stationed at Minden's OPP detachment.

Lutterworth reasoned that since the county will be charged by the province for police services as of January 1 according to a full compliment of officers, it should increase pressure for additional staff.

Minden OPP, which should have 23 officers, currently has 16.

POLICE BRIEFS from the area OPP

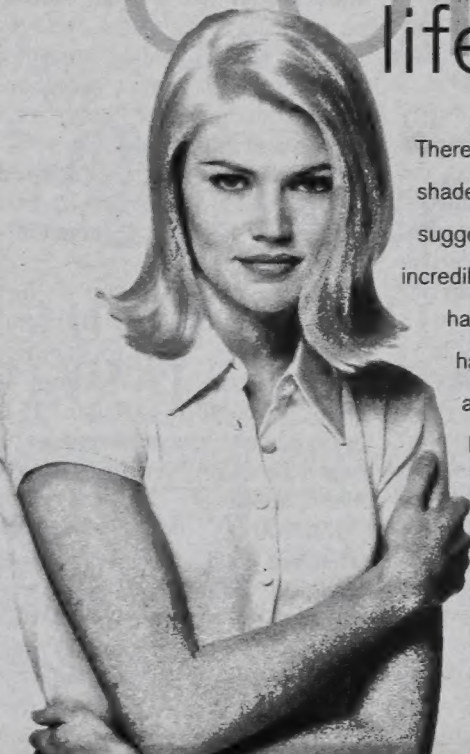

Loon Lake cottager acquitted of marijuana charges

Last Monday in the court at Lindsay, the Crown Attorney dropped all charges against 36-year-old Peter Lees, who had been charged in January of 1996 of cultivation and possession of marijuana. Lees, who lives in Nepean and has a cottage on Loon Lake, was visiting friends in Stanhope at the time of an OPP raid and has been acquitted of all charges.

Operation Impact yields no impaired drivers

On October 4, as part of the province-wide Operation Impact, officers with the Minden/Coboconk OPP detachment stopped 694 cars, to check for such things as use of seatbelts and impaired driving. As a result of the one-day blitz, there were 22 charges of not wearing a seatbelt, 15 charges of other offences, but there were no drivers charged with drinking and driving offences.

Education reforms ensure equality: Hodgson

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

The province's changes to education will help ensure that every child, no matter where they live, will have the same educational opportunities, says the riding's MPP.

"You should have equal access to quality education and the only way to do that is to base funding on the needs of students," says Chris Hodgson, who has recently been named chairman of the management board, in an interview on October 4. "It's a flawed system that (presently) only takes residential assessment into account" when determining provincial funding levels.

By taking over responsibility for 50% of education funding (in exchange for other services) and having more control over budgets, Hodgson says the government will better be able to ensure that education dollars are primarily spent in the classroom.

In the past, some boards have reacted to funding pressures by increasing the pupil/teacher ratio, and Hodgson doesn't feel that benefits the child. "(Decisions) should be based on the proper numbers for the needs of children... This is children in front of a teacher, and we've got a year to work on that."

If the funding system hadn't changed, he said the results would have been disastrous for Haliburton County, which has been seeing a steady decline in education funding because of a seemingly "rich" assessment base. He says he helped convince the government to put a cap on funding cuts for areas such as Haliburton.

In defending his government's controversial Bill 160, however, Hodgson says "the main motive (for the changes) isn't money." Instead, the province was responding to the complaints of both educators and employers that students weren't being properly prepared as they advanced through the system. Testing showed that "we weren't scoring as high as we should and yet we're already spending more per pupil" than any other province. By introducing such things as a more standardized and "rigorous" curriculum and more detailed report cards, the changes let parents better know how their children are doing.

Teachers unions have not responded well to the Bill, and Hodgson says "I feel for families and teachers... I would hope it wouldn't come to a strike." If it does, however, then it becomes "a board position," and out of his realm, he says.

Bill 160 isn't the only unpopular move by his government, but Hodgson says most polls say people recognize the province is doing what it promised to do "and that's paying off... People knew it would be tough. We had overspent for a generation and we can't get out of it (in a short time.) Change is never easy. Talk to Bell employees or Ontario Hydro employees" whose lives have been affected by restructuring and downsizing.

The government started its spending reductions internally, Hodgson says. Twelve percent of the province's budget is spent on running the government and various ministries. The MPPs cut their pay, lowered their numbers and reduced internal spending by 33%, in all areas except health. "That was tough on a lot of employees," Hodgson says. "The welfare cuts were tough, too."

Eighteen percent of the budget is interest on the debt "and there's nothing we can do about that." The other 70% is payments to transfer partners such as hospitals, schools, and doctors.

Hodgson says the government could have balanced its budget by cutting more funds to these partners, but that would have hurt some areas more than others, particularly rural and northern Ontario. He doesn't believe the other option is raising taxes because he says when the NDP government raised taxes, revenues went down. The Progressive Conservative government has lowered taxes and revenues are up, he says.

Though he wasn't surprised by the cabinet shuffle — it's been nearly two-and-a-half years since the Tories were elected and there have been rumours of a shake-up for months — Hodgson said he was surprised by the job he was offered.

"I'm kind of humbled by it. I'm honoured by it," he said. "My first responsibility is to the people of Victoria-Haliburton. I think this responsibility will help the people of Victoria-Haliburton."

Hodgson said he had a long conversation with the Premier on Thursday about the shuffle, but declined to cite reasons Harris gave for wanting him to take on greater responsibilities.

The management board has five key duties:

- it approves and monitors the budgets of all ministries;
- as the employer for the government, it negotiates with all government unions, such as the Ontario Public Service Employees' Union;
- it sets government strategies for information technology;
- it sets rules for government regulations, such as purchasing policies;
- and it manages the provincially-owned real estate, through the Ontario Realty Corporation.

As a former management board member, Hodgson is well-versed in the board's workings.

In her new role as Deputy House Leader, Hodgson will work with House Leader Norm Sterling to set the legislative agenda through negotiations with the other two parties, deciding when bills are to be presented and how much time is to be set aside for debating them.

Hodgson said he enjoyed his time with the MNR and was fortunate to have worked with "great people."

"I think we've done a lot over the past two years," he said.

This is the Year of the R.R.I.F.

This Fall would be an appropriate time to remind all of you that this is the "Triple RRIF Conversion Year". If you are turning 69, 70, or 71 in 1997, you must convert your RRSP's (Registered Retirement Saving Plan) into a retirement option by year end. If you are one of those affected, you face some big decisions this year. The first is what to do with your RRSP money. You have a number of options, of which RRIF's have tended to be the most popular.

CASH

You can take every cent of your RRSP in cash. However, the full amount will become taxable immediately, which means you will give a big portion of your RRSP savings back to the government.

ANNUITY

You can also buy an annuity which pays a guaranteed fixed income for life or to age 90. However, annuities are based on current interest rates which are very low at present. Also, you lose control of the money. If interest rates go up, you normally can't change your mind and switch to another annuity. And when you die, the life insurance company that issued the annuity may keep all the proceeds.

RRIFs

A RRIF's flexibility offers the best option for many people. RRIFs generally can hold any investment that was eligible for your RRSP. In fact, a RRIF is basically an RRSP in reverse. Instead of making contributions, you are required to withdraw a minimum amount every year, based on your age or your spouse's age. You can take out more money if you want to, which means that a RRIF can be structured to protect you from cost of living increases.

The following are the minimum percentages that must be withdrawn from a RRIF between the ages of 69 and 73.

Age	%
69	4.76
70	5.00
71	7.38
72	7.48
73	7.50

If you haven't made the conversion yet, don't worry. There is still time before the end of 1997.

We at Financial Concept Group are here to help you choose the most appropriate option for your current and future needs.

HCDC grants give three organizations boost

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Three local organizations are getting a financial boost from the Community Economic Development Committee.

The committee, which is part of the Haliburton County Development Corporation, is contributing:

- $4,000 to the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association towards the construction of a bridge over Three Brothers River
- $10,000 to the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association towards the Lake Trout Enhancement Program and its fish hatchery
- and $2,000 to the Youth Forum which will be held October 18 and 19 at Kinark Outdoors Centre.

"They're good for the community and the economic wellbeing of the county," says Andy Campbell of the HCDC.

All three projects meet the committee's criteria for funding. The snowmobile association and outdoors association projects will benefit tourism and the committee had already identified a need to help youths, a need which was recently reinforced by the county's strategic planning process.

"These are all partnerships," Campbell adds, noting that the grants pay for only part of the projects.

The money comes out of the committee's budget. The committee previously had an employee but decided "rather than have a salaried person, we'll use the money for specific purposes."

Any other organization which wants to explore future partnerships with the committee is asked to make an application to the HCDC. Call 457-3555. The next round of approvals is expected in February.

Haliburton lakes lower than average

The summer recreation season is coming to a close and so this will be the last weekly update on the water conditions until next May.

The Haliburton area lakes had declined to 36.5% on October 6, which is still about 6.5% less than normal for that date. Only minimum flows were run from them and with some rain, the past week saw a decline on these lakes of only 2.7%.

The Kawarthas are near normal levels for the end of the navigation season. Last day of lockages is Wednesday, October 15. The staff will be gone from the Locks until next spring. Water Control activities will be done by a travelling crew in each canal sector.

THE PINK CADILLAC'S NEXT: Two local Mary Kay consultants have earned enough points to be awarded with 1998 Grand Am cars — in shiny red, of course. Picking up their new cars from Andy Salvatori at Curry Motors last week are Nancy Chapple-Thomas of Carnarvon and Linda Schrader of Ingoldsby, with other consultants cheering them on (and waiting for their turn.) The licence plates read MK 4U and TRY MK. Audrey Winsley, the first local consultant to be awarded the car, will be getting a new one in a month. The next goals to work towards are the pink Regal and then the pink Cadillac.

The young man of Ontario

YEAR ONE: A MONTH before his 30th birthday, Chris Hodgson first enters politics, becoming reeve of Dysart et al, the top political position in the county's largest municipality.

Year two: His fellow county councillors elect him as the warden of the county, the top political position in the county.

Year three: Hodgson resigns as reeve to successfully run in the provincial by-election, and the third of his family to sit at Queen's Park.

Year four: The neophyte MPP is named Minister of Natural Resources, Northern Developments and Mines.

Year five: Hodgson oversees a massive overhaul of the ministry, including significant lay-offs and policy reforms.

Year six: Hodgson is given a job promotion, last week becoming chairman of the province's management board, deputy house leader and Minister of Northern Development and Mines.

Year ????: Hodgson is elected premier of Ontario?

Well, no matter what you think about his politics, the rise of Chris Hodgson's political star has been nothing short of meteoric.

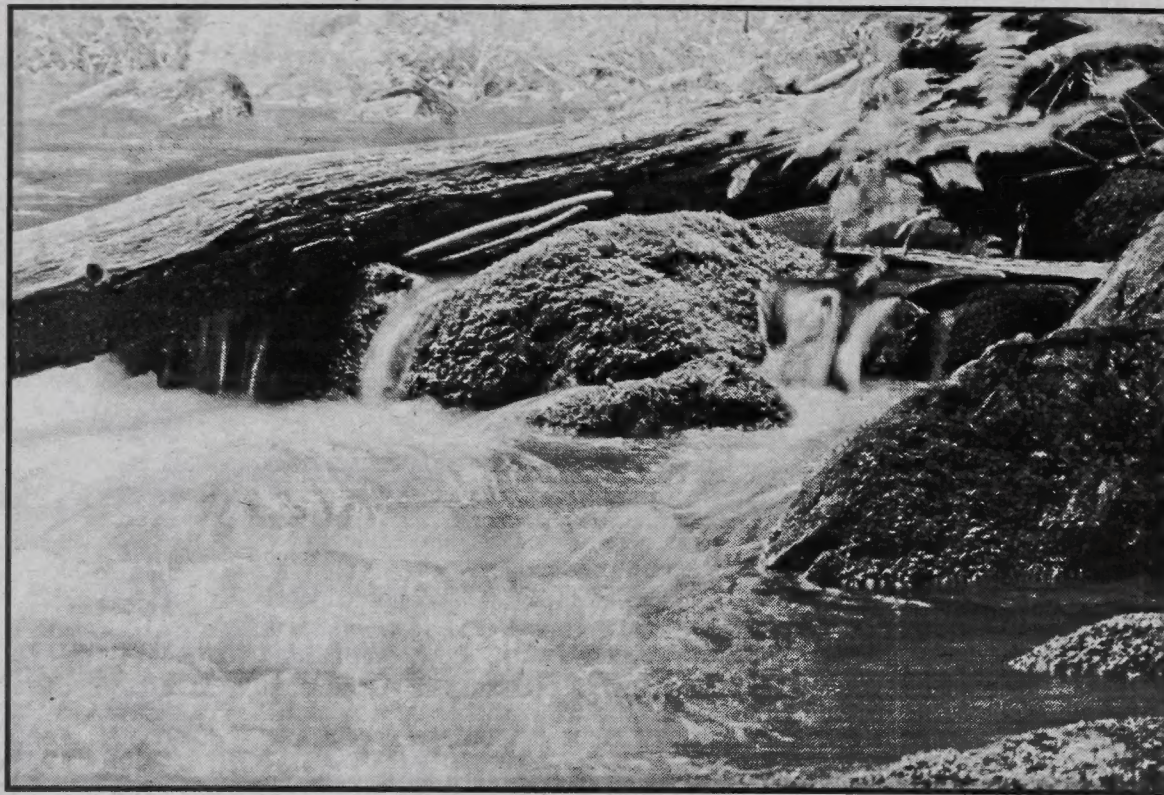

This recent advancement puts him in league with the riding's other great political success story, Leslie Frost, the Lindsay lawyer who served as this province's popular Conservative premier from 1949 to 1961. Just as Frost became known as the "Old Man of Ontario", the 35-year-old Hodgson is certainly gaining a reputation as one of the youngest politicians to attain such a position of power. It's a remarkable achievement, and quite a testament to the possibilities that are open to someone from as small a town as Haliburton. (As Hodgson mentioned at the recent 25th anniversary of J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School, he and two other classmates were once put in a "special education" class at the school — one of those classmates is now a millionaire, one is now a partner in a leading engineering firm and Hodgson has one of the top three positions at Queen's Park. It gives a rather new definition to "special" education — and, as an aside, also points to the problem of stereotyping kids who learn in ways other than the norm.)

Of course, given the recent unrest over some of the province's initiatives, there are going to be some people in the county who won't quite know how to react to Hodgson's appointment. While they will be proud that someone from the Highlands has done so well, and glad that they have someone from the riding so close to the premier, they would also prefer to be slamming the party that Hodgson represents. As a result, they'll probably try to temper their words, criticizing the government in general and rarely Hodgson in particular. Why make someone with so much influence at Queen's Park mad, especially when his government will be in power for at least a few more years?

It's Hodgson's overall ability to deflect criticism that has helped in his steady advancement. Just a few weeks after becoming Minister of Natural Resources, native protester Dudley George was killed in a police confrontation involving one of the MNR's provincial parks, and yet Hodgson's name was rarely mentioned in news reports. His ministry was one of the hardest hit in the 1996 rounds of provincial layoffs, and yet he was able to retain a firm stand without saying anything stupid and making people angry at him. There's concern over the environmental future of the Niagara escarpment, yet in all the criticism over the MNR's role, Hodgson is rarely personally named. Locally, he never burns his bridges, listening sympathetically to everyone and never directly saying he disagrees with a certain person's or group's point of view. When the Echo recently tried to get him to give a personal opinion about the impact of a potential teachers strike in the county, he was at his evasive best, politely neither disagreeing with the local teachers nor with the Ministry of Education, just stressing the need for the Conservatives' promise of cutting the deficit. He feels for the teachers, yet also believes in his government's methods. At the same time, he's fought hard for his riding, bringing off a series of coups which help to temper local reaction to his government. He is, in other words, the consummate politician.

It's hard not to wish him well in this new position, and hard not to believe he will do well. People can make their own judgements about his government during the next election, but until then, there's simply pride that someone from Haliburton is now even more snugly ensconced in the premier's inner circle.

Letters to the Editor

Teachers, unions show little regard to taxpayers

To the Editor:

As a taxpayer for Milton and Haliburton County, I very much resent the way teachers, labour and other unions have very little regard to people not in the union.

My taxes go up every year but who do I have to complain to? My government, who I elected to run the province. I'm having a very hard time keeping up with these taxes that I pay.

I would suggest that the government lets the teachers go on strike or any other union which likes to hold the public as hostages. When their sugar bowl goes empty, they will come back and beg for work. At this point, the unions will fall to the wayside. As I see it, all unions are very afraid that they may come to an end.

I elected Mike Harris to run this province and not the unions, school teachers or anyone else. Mike Harris has a very difficult job to make this province run. My hat's off to him. He will get my vote in the next election. He's got the only government that's doing something — not all talk.

Education reforms give province sweeping powers

To the Editor:

What is Bill 160, the Education Quality Improvement Act? People ask us, "What is your real beef with this bill?" As we have outlined in past letters to the editor and a full page advertisement, our concerns about Bill 160 and its ramifications on our profession and students' education are many, such as the threatened removal of a further $1-billion.

Our main concern, however, is something called regulations. Within the bill, there is the power to make regulations which give complete control to the Minister and Cabinet.

The Minister of Education can, if this bill passes, introduce and implement almost anything he chooses through regulations. The regulations are not subject to a voting procedure in the Legislature. He can, through these regulations, decide to cut the number of teachers, bring in non-teachers to teach, supervise and evaluate, cut time for planning and working with individual students or bring in business managers to run our schools. Beyond that, he can do anything else he wishes. He has given himself and Cabinet complete power over education, including such things as finances, trustees, directors of education, curriculum, qualification standards of teachers and support staff.

We are not in support of a government who continues to steam roll over the people of the province. We are not in support of a government who continues to discount the will of the people. We are not in support of a government who continues to give itself complete power through one omnibus bill after another. We are not in support of a government that does not adhere to the values of democracy. We are not in support of Bill 160 because it gives the Minister of Education and Mike Harris complete control over education and we don't trust Queen's Park to know what is best for education.

We are in support of high quality education, integrity and just treatment for all citizens of Ontario.

If you are concerned about democracy in this province, call MPP Chris Hodgson at 1/800/424-2490 or the Minister of Education and Training at 416/325-2600.

Autumn brings gift of arts to Highlands

WHAT A GREAT TIME for the arts in Haliburton! Another very successful art tour weekend and the possibility of a permanent home for the School of Fine Arts in Glebe Park as part of the Sir Sandford Fleming College expansion, both framed by perhaps the most vivid autumnal display in recent memory.

All three of these are woven into the Haliburton experience for all three contribute significantly to life in Haliburton, bringing both pleasure and income into our county. The splendor of autumn is granted to us as a gift, the other two are mainly the result of a minority's single-minded determination over many years to make the visual arts a viable lifestyle in this area. They are to be congratulated.

In this moment of satisfaction perhaps a pause to assess future possible pitfalls. Nature will take care of itself and continue to seduce strangers into our midst each autumn since Haliburton is one of the finest regions anywhere in which to savour the spectacle. Visitors, both repeat and new, will continue to flock here.

But what about the school and the tour - will their successful formula of the past prove sufficient in the future?

Tourists are a fickle lot and although we see more of them in our region all of the time, that does not mean that the pool of possible tourists is increasing. No, it only means that at this time our attractions are more enticing than others' and that for a while at least our message is going farther afield.

Other areas, other activities are finding that they have fewer visitors. Attendance figures at the Wye Marsh Nature Preserve near Owen Sound have been declining in the past few years and this summer for the first time attendance at various Ontario air shows was down significantly.

Why? Because, so observers concluded, there are now so many of them (one almost every weekend in the summer) that they have lost their magic.

Can our two major art-based attractions, the School of Fine Arts and the Studio Tour, learn from other experiences before the numbers begin to decline, because this year's results do not necessarily predict next year's success.

Perhaps the School of Fine Arts could become truly reflective of its name and offer courses in some of the other Fine Arts. A slender start has been made, Story Telling and Scottish Dancing being among the past season's offerings. Why not Theatre Arts since here in the Highlands we have performers of and performances for all ages and perhaps may even have a good instructor or two.

In such a manner could the base of possible students be enlarged. This will be needed, the school being a victim of its own success, so that many, having returned for a few years, find they are either competent or saturated or both and thus want to sample other vacation attractions.

"Other attractions" seems to be the essence of the tourist mentality and we are all part of it some of the time. This is probably why Wye Marsh is losing attendance. Also, art tours are sprouting all across the land and like air shows may lose their magic.

Our advantage for the art tour in the Highlands is the time of year and location. But many who tour do so only once; thus a means of attracting repeat visitors as well as new ones is essential. Since there is a pool of very fine artists and artisans in the area perhaps broadening the base or rotating the artists featured on the tour could keep visitors returning.

The School of Fine Arts and the Fall Tour might take a page from Nature's book in which excellence and variety create a consistently winning formula.

Government has attacked all that made Ontario great

To the Editor:

The September 30 editorial regarding the cancer of gambling terminals throughout Ontario has only one error. Although there are many terrific Tory MPPs, they have been ignored by Mike Harris and power central. Practically all of the structure which made Ontario a great place to live, from education, to health care, to municipal structure, have been attacked. Therefore, I think you are in error when you say "The government has put a price to its virtues". This government is sadly lacking in all virtues, unless you consider destruction to be one.

Franks Hotel used to sit on Highland Street in Haliburton, approximately where the driveway into ValuMart is today. There's no information on when it was built, but the building was present during the World War I era, and operated at the time as the Belgium Inn (perhaps reflecting Allied war-time sympathies.) Ownership chronology is hazy, and some people refer to it as a hotel, others a boarding house. Bert Mallard is known to have run it early on, followed by Ern Fetterly (the contractor who built the present-day St. George's Anglican Church in the 1920s), and later operated by Frank Robertson, Johnny Madill, William Gliddon and Billy McKnight. The lean-to at the right was added by the 1920s and housed different ventures including at one time Rufus Anderson's confectionery shop and later Tom Carnochan's barb shop. (Carl Hussey's hardware store may have had its origins somewhere on the premises in the early 1940s before moving into the former Gorrie store.) In later years the building became somewhat decrepit and was torn down in the mid-1940s. At that time a new barbershop was erected for Tom Carnochan at the site, later occupied by Bruce Sawyer, and was torn down in the late 1970s. At left of the photo is the residential portion of the Daniel Gorrie building; the store is just outside the photo. The Gorrie building (house and store) was torn down in 1978 to make way for the current IGA grocery store. The above information was compiled by Steve Hill of the Haliburton Highlands Museum and based on recollections from Wayne B. Wood, Howard Roberts, Glenn Austin, Jack Hoxie, Harry Brohm, Don McPhaden, Don Johnston, Bruce Sawyer, Jack Hunter and Brian Hunter. The photo was lent to us by Wayne B. Wood, who found it in the collection of his late aunt, Helen (née Winn) Griffith. Our thanks to everyone involved.

Studio Tour a huge success for county

To the Editor:

How many times have I heard that Haliburton County is the most beautiful and friendly place there is? On Oct. 4th and 5th I heard that said more than two thousand times.

I have a Studio which participates in the Haliburton County Studio Tour and along with twenty other participating studios we hosted our tenth annual studio tour. This year I had been elected President, and on behalf of everyone who participates, I would like to thank all those who made this years tour a success. A success not only for the individual studios, but for the entire County.

If it were not for the cooperation, support and help of many individuals, organizations and businesses the Studio Tour, and the County would not be what it is today. The inns, Resorts, B&Bs, motels and cottage rentals who all acknowledge large bookings for "The Tour", along with the stores, shops, boutiques and restaurants who all helped distribute our brochures also showed visitors to the county our warm Haliburton Highland hospitality. It was a pleasure to greet the many familiar faces who strolled down my driveway and exciting to introduce myself to visitors who travelled as far away as New York and England and Belyrus.

Many thanks to our local newspapers for their support and coverage, the Chamber of Commerce for its diligence. Thanks also go to Barb Bolin and everyone at Sir Sandford Fleming College who help keep the "Arts" growing. And to our host galleries, thanks to Ruth Amos at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery and Pam Kinney at the Rails' End Gallery whose exhibits were important so people could preview our work.

The Studio Tour does not just happen on its own.

It takes a lot of blood, sweat and tears from each and every studio, plus a commitment to the quality of work that we do. Thanks to Maggie and Steve Longworth, Susan and Michael Butz, Dorothy Rawsthorne, Barbara Joy Peel, Joan and Peter Hoad, Ed Araquel, Rickie Woods, all at Senitt Dolls & Puppets, Derek and Paul Rolfe, Joyce Pruyssers and Peter Emmink, Grahame and Debbie Wales,

Glenn Diezel, Gary and Judy Chapman, Edgar and Lynn Hancock, Doreen Berry, Helen Newton, Lindsay Beaudry, David Hollows, Wendy Ladurantaye, Jean Farrell, Marion and Jack Kinsman and to our guest artists Kevin Dunlop, Velma Stiver, Mary Wallace, Marie-Luce Pelletier, Sheila Ziman and Gordon John Freer. Hallowe'en excitement almost as good as Christmas

IT WAS STILL A FEW weeks until Hallowe'en but Lloyd and Eve were finding it hard to wait. They had seen decorations in the drug store window downtown and had been drawn inside. This year's costumes were hanging on cardboard hangers, the materials shiny new and bright. A witch, hunchback, alien or princess; the choices were all there depending on whether they thought they'd be feeling good or evil on October 31st. The treats were piled in clear bags; perfect miniature versions of chocolaty, sweet delights they would dare not indulge in the rest of the year.

But Hallowe'en was special. They could take on different identities and do things unexpected, even bizarre without people thinking them odd. For Lloyd and Eve, Hallowe'en was almost as good as Christmas. And even when you are 35 years old, it can still be hard to control your excitement. Such was the case with Lloyd and Eve.

They had no children. Just not in the cards, as Lloyd

DOWN OUR ROAD

would say. But they still enjoyed children and there were always plenty around. They were aunt and uncle many times over and the kids in town knew where to go for odd jobs, great cookies and baby rabbits. However, it wasn't just what Lloyd and Eve offered to kids who dropped by their house, it was the personalities of the couple that really seemed to appeal to youngsters. Guess we never totally grew up ourselves, was how Eve put it.

They enjoyed riding bikes, going to movies, eating ice cream and not worrying very much about whether or not the housework got done or the eavestrough cleaned out. For them, it was more important to enjoy each day and let the future take care of itself. So sometimes the bills piled up along with the dishes or they ended up with tight clothes from too much pizza and pop. Then Lloyd and Eve would buckle down, pay some bills, keep the sink fairly empty and go on diets. For a while. Until Eve came home and said to Lloyd she just had to buy another craft kit or Lloyd walked in the door with a deluxe pizza, claiming he was going into withdrawal after so long without one. They would each laugh at the other, say it was OK and slowly return to their old habits.

Hallowe'en was part of their habits, though they would prefer to use the word tradition. Which it was. For years their house had been the most popular place to visit on October 31. I was having a coffee on Saturday morning and watched their faces light up as they described their plans for this year.

Lloyd would again rake all the leaves onto the front lawn where they would be trapped by the picket fence and pile up a few feet deep. He said this felt spooky for the little ones who had to wade waist deep through the coloured mass. Eve had a bar stool she was going to cover with a white sheet and place a particularly terrifying carved and lit pumpkin on top. Then there was the gnarled and bloody plastic hand, without a body, that would lie on top of the porch railing ready to reach out toward anyone walking up to the front door. Lloyd had rigged up some kind of remote control device so he could move the hand from inside the house. But before children even reached the door, the moans and screams accompanied by eerie music would respond to a flip of Lloyd's stereo switch.

Hallowe'en was special. They could take on different identities and do things unexpected, even bizarre, without people thinking them odd.

They had not yet decided what they themselves would be this year. Eve said she always enjoyed being a green-faced witch and Lloyd favoured the zombie look, but they had enough outfits and makeup to fix themselves up on the spur of the moment, once they made up their minds. Of course the front hall closet was bulging with candy filled boxes and bags, ready to be given out by the scores.

They both rubbed their hands in anticipation of the fun to come. And then, said Lloyd, they could start planning Christmas. Ho, ho, ho, chuckled Eve.

HHSS field hockeySeniors continue winning; juniors playoff-bound

With one game remaining in league play the Haliburton Highlands Sr. Field Hockey team has a perfect record of four wins and no losses.

On Thursday, Oct. 2, the team travelled to Lakefield District Secondary School and defeated their hosts 3-0.

Scoring for Haliburton were Amber Lee Cully assisted by Jenn Turner, Jenn Turner assisted by Jody Reid, and Jody Reid assisted by Meg Agnew.

The offense was supported by strong midfielders led by Amanda Duncombe and Katrina Matysek, and the defense did what was necessary to preserve Britney Hewitt's shutout.

On Tuesday, Oct. 7, playing a strong offensive match at home, the girls defeated Crestwood 1-0.

Mid-way through the first half Amber Lee Cully executed a perfect through pass in the circle to Jody Reid who fired a strong drive past the Crestwood net-minder.

The junior team also won its match against Crestwood 1-0.

The offense had many more offensive opportunities in the second half, and credit goes to Jenn Wales in net and the defense for holding off a few threats from Crestwood.

The team has not been scored on in the four league games and has notched 14 goals against the opposition.

The stage is set for a showdown for the pool championship when Haliburton hosts Lakefield College School for the fifth and final league game on Friday, Oct. 17. Lakefield has an identical record.

Whatever the outcome of Friday's game the team has earned a place in the Kawartha Championship tournament to be played at Trinity College School in Port Hope on Tue. Oct. 21.

As a result of recent games the Haliburton Jr. Field Hockey team has earned a place in the Kawartha Championship tournament.

On Thursday, Oct. 2, they travelled to Lakefield District Secondary School and played a very evenly matched game.

Lakefield got the only goal of the game in the first half and despite constant pressure from Haliburton they were unable to get the equalizer.

On Tuesday, Oct. 7, the Juniors took on Crestwood at home.

The Juniors played a strong offensive game, winning the match 1-0 on a goal by Kim Varty, assisted by Tanya Sisson. Kelly Dawson was in net for the shutout.

The girls will play their final league game against Lakefield College School on Friday October 17 and then advance to the Kawartha tournament on Tuesday, Oct. 28.

Novice A Huskies net Sharks

by ROY BURK and JIM WINN

Which would hurt more — a Shark bite or a Dog bite? Well, the Novice As went down to the Shark tank in Omeme to find out on Sunday, October 5. The Sharks had won two very lop-sided games and were not quite ready for the quick skating Huskies in the first.

Dylan Metcalfe drew the puck back to Jeff Burk who drove it to Devin Hunter who sled it along the ice past a screened Omeme goalie for a power play goal that took three seconds.

The teams traded goals in the second period. Adam Sisson took a head's up pass from Scott Lewis and bulged the twine for the Huskies second goal.

This game was very even in the third period with end-to-end play and great saves by the Shark's Ryan Palmer and the Huskies' Ian Sachs. Adam scored his second goal with assists going to Dylan Metcalfe and Kenton Winn.

The Sharks came on strong at the end but came up on the short side of a 3-2 score. So, this time the dog bite hurt just a little bit more than the shark bite.

On October 10, the OMHA Novice A Huskies travelled to Woodville for their third game of the year. The hour drive and being a Friday had its effect on the boys in blue.

It was a slow start for us but not for Woodville who jumped out into an early lead. They scored 55 seconds into the game, followed by a second five minutes later. But the Huskies persevered. They tightened the defence and increased their determination. Late in the second period, Woodville received a penalty and Haliburton took advantage of it. Dylan Metcalfe scored on a pass from Devon Hunter.

Early in the third Dylan scored again, unassisted. Two minutes later Devon drilled one into the top corner after receiving the puck from Adam Sisson and making a rush down the boards.

Woodville applied supreme pressure with only five minutes left but Haliburton's goalie, Ian Sacks, stood his ground and made several fantastic saves. At the sound of the buzzer it was 3-2 for Haliburton.

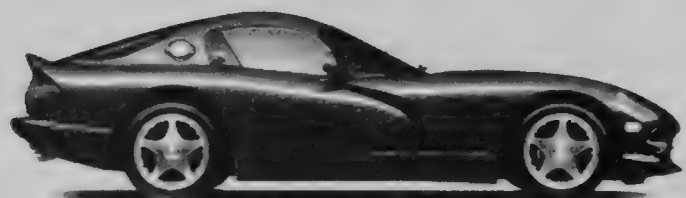

On Sunday, October 12, the Huskies played their home opener. They faced Orono earlier this year and had achieved a well deserved victory. This game was to be no different.

Dylan Metcalfe opened, scoring halfway through the first period, beating Orono's tough goalie, unassisted. Adam Sisson scored the second goal early in the second period after receiving a pass from Jeff Burk deep in Haliburton's end. Gaelan Bowman also had an assist on the play. Kenton Winn drilled the third goal in after a nifty pass from Dylan. Tyler Watson ended the scoring late in the third with the help of Gaelan and Scott Lewis.

The Huskies were without their regular goalie, so Kyle Evans was between pipes. He did an outstanding job and was awarded with a shut out. The final score was 4-0. Great game, guys!

PeeWee A Huskies get off to busy start

by DAVE BROWN

The Haliburton PeeWee A team, coached by Glen Sharpley, started its regular season on the road with five games over a nine day period.

On October 2, the Huskies won their first game rather handily 12-3, over their Millbrook opponents.

Two days later, Newcastle hosted Haliburton and after scoring two quick goals in the second period, sent Haliburton home with a 3-1 loss.

The next day found the Huskies visiting Orono. Haliburton came out of this game with a 2-1 victory. While the score was close, the Huskies outplayed Orono and had lots of scoring opportunities.

After a three day break, it was off to Bobcaygeon. The home team capitalized on their scoring chances and had pulled ahead of the Huskies, making it 3-0 with 13 minutes left in the third period. The Huskies finally found the net with five minutes remaining, putting the puck past the 'Caygeon net-minder twice as the clock wound down but the tying goal eluded the team.

Finally, on October 10, the Huskies played their first home game against Manvers.

For the first two periods, Haliburton had the edge in play but had troubles beating the Manvers goal tender. By the end of the second period, Manvers was up with a 3-1 lead. The Huskies came out for the third with a little more zip and pumped three goals into the Manvers net in less than five minutes. While Manvers were on their heels, the Huskies popped in one more, winning this one 5-3. Excellent comeback.

'Miracle' game puts juniors into playoffs

by BRUCE GRIFFITH
Coach

Miracles do happen in high school sports. The Junior football team thought they had been eliminated from the playoffs when they just narrowly lost to Fenelon Falls on October 3. But the first place team, I.E. Weldon, lost badly the same day to the last place team, L.C.V.I. This set up a chance for Haliburton: if they could beat the still first place Weldon WildCats by 22 points, they could make the championship round.

A team that has improved steadily since early September, the Redmen came out storming with Tail Back Cody Duda scoring three touchdowns in the first half with help from linemen Mark Comeau, Paul Daniels and Jamie Johnston. Rookie Jamie Doan caught a beautiful pass from quarterback Mike Hamilton on the second touchdown for a two point conversion.

With a 20 to 0 lead at half time, the Redmen knew they could not let up. They still needed another touchdown. "Zippidy" Duda, the toughest player in the junior league, again scored for his fourth touchdown, his best game of the year with 270 yards rushing. The one point conversion was made good by Brent Bolger and the team thought they could relax.

The Weldon WildCats knew one touchdown for them would save their season and they would not give up. Our defence, led by Mitch Johnson, Brock Ladurantaye, Brent Bolger, Adam Clarkson, Gary Kernohan and Dennis Collins, had a fantastic day, not letting Weldon gain any yards.

The whole team, including rookie Grade 9 stars - Shane Walker, Jamie Doan, Kenny Mott and Josh Shaw - played an exceptional game. Many thanks to parents, fans, trainers and the Spirit Squad for cheering us on to victory!

A senior HHSS Redman eludes a Wildcat tackle during Thursday's big win.

Sr. Redmen declaw Wildcats

Haliburton high school's senior football Redmen tamed Lindsay's I.E. Weldon Wildcats in a giant 61-7 victory in Thursday's home game.

The Redmen, unbeaten in five regular season games, are in first place in their division with just one game left before the playoffs.

Greg Simmons led the team's highest point tally of the season with four touchdowns.

"He had an incredible game offensively. He played really well," said head Coach Tim Davies.

Also scoring TDs were Ryan Anderson, with two, and Matt Reid, Shane Parks and Devon Dart, with single. George Godfrey hit seven converts to add to the score.

The Wildcats' single touchdown is the first to be scored against the senior Redmen this season.

It's likely Haliburton will play I.E. Weldon for the Kawartha West championship, which bodes well for the Redmen. The game will be played at HHSS on a date to be determined next week.

With one more regular season game this week, Davies said the team will focus on staying healthy and practising for the playoffs.

A junior Redman carries the ball for a TD in 'miracle' win.

OMHA Bantam Huskies silence Cougar attack

by SUE CLARKSON
Bantam OMHA

It was a sense of dismay that St. Andrew's congregation met on October 5 to consider and vote on the recommendation to close the church. There will be an appropriate official closing ceremony near the end of November. Your imagination can supply how we feel in the circumstances, despite the inevitability of the course of action taken.

The blue and white OMHA Bantams started the 96/97 hockey season hosting Bobcaygeon. Thanks to Travis Bain for filling in on this rather short staffed team. These guys had been practising for so long, it was hard to hold them back in this match.

The Huskies dominated every aspect of the game. When the Cougars tried to mount an attack, Wilson and Mulholland were there to protect their combined shut out.

Ryan Wood opened the scoring after working his way through the Cougar's forward and defense lines, resulting in a goal from a hard wrist shot.

Adam Clarkson scored on the power play in the second with a howitzer from the point, assisted by Bobby Hebert and Jamie Luck.

Nick Cochrane had a stellar game scoring the last two goals of the evening, one assisted by Woodsy and another by Clarkson. Nick's presence was felt not only on the scoreboard but literally by many a Cougar player.

The following night, Ops hosted the Huskies in an extremely physical game.

Thanks again to Travis and Chris Petrow, for helping out the depleted Bantam team. Ops were up by one in the second when Bobby Hebert scored a power play goal that tied the game, assisted by Nick Cochrane and Jamie Johnston. Ops managed to squeak one more by before the period was over. Excellent defensive work by Jamie Doan throughout this match. Three nights of hockey, daily football practice, one line of players ill or injured, along with two hurt during the game played a part in this loss.

Stoughton nets second hat trick in Major Tyke win

The Major Tyke Huskies hosted Fenelon Falls on Saturday in a rematch of last weekend's battle.

The Huskies pretty much dominated from the get go with Cole Scheffee opening the scoring with a beautiful end-to-end dash and a bullet shot into the Fenelon net. Assists went to Jessie Stoughton and Nathan Woodcock.

Jessie Stoughton registered his second straight hattrick and did it in impressive style, scoring on a breakaway from a rebound and from a wrist shot in the slot. Assists went to Chase Thurston, Scott Griffith and Robert Lowe.

Lane (Gretzky) Schmid was the big shooter of the day, scoring four big goals and looking spectacular doing it. Assists went to Daniel Sisson and Chase Thurston.

Nelson (The Dominator) Evans was amazing in the net making save after save and only allowing one by him. A great team effort by the Huskies resulted in an 8-1 victory.

"I GET EVERYTHING ELSE MY MECHANIC DOES FOR ME."

"I know I could save a few dollars on my oil changes if I shopped around a little bit. But I don't think it's worth it. When I take my car to my mechanic, I know they're giving me premium oil, a great filter and they really check my car out. They don't cut corners. To me, the promise of better protection and performance is worth a lot more than what I might save."

PREMIUM SERVICE KEEPS YOUR VEHICLE ON THE ROAD.

At Goodwrench service we only install premium motor oil. Nothing else. In our minds, nothing will make your car's engine last longer than regular oil changes using premium motor oil. Your engine will be cleaner, heat created inside your engine will be absorbed better, you'll be protected against corrosion and all the moving parts will be better lubricated. All of which lessen the chance of major engine repairs. Plus, your vehicle will be inspected by mechanics specially trained to recognize any potential problems.

MAKE A GOODWRENCH MECHANIC YOUR MECHANIC.

"Besides, when you add it all up, over the lifetime of my car I'd only be saving peanuts. This way, I know I'm protecting my car and myself. That's why my mechanic is a Goodwrench mechanic."

Two teams of area runners compete in Rice Lake Relay

On a sunny Oct. 5, two teams of local runners competed in the third annual Rice Lake Relay southeast of Peterborough.

Teams of 10 individuals completed the 100-plus km course, with a record field of 17 groups entered.

The "Hicks from the Sticks" included the old guy Marcel Crete, Steve Hemming, Wendy Hill, Kristy Gammon and Steve Ferracutti.

Other "Hicks" were John Craig, Janet Bottum, Caitlin Petit and Jennifer Paton with the final leg run by Blake Paton.

The "Upper Crust" arrived at the finish line slightly behind the "Hicks" but nonetheless in excellent spirits.

The "Crust" were Ron and Toos Reid, Eva Griffith, Rob Hill and Markus Carl. The other 10-15 km legs were completed by Andy Salvatori, Jane Heyes, Norm Bottum and Martha Steen with Kate Boyd bringing it home.

Plans are already being made to conquer the hills of Rice Lake for the next year.

It's hoped (by some) that the "Upper Crust" will live up to its name and rise above the "Hicks".

ONE DAY WORKSHOP

Managing Occupational Disability
A Business Perspective

Designed to provide an informative overview of occupational disability management, this one-day workshop will focus on three key areas: Prevention, Management, Rehabilitation.

In Canada, someone is injured on the job every nine seconds. One worker in 15 is likely to have a workplace accident in the coming year. There are 196,000 permanently disabled workers in Ontario. For most employers, long term disability caseloads are higher than worker's compensation caseloads. (National Institute of Disability Management and Research - NIDMR)

SHARED PASSIONS:

Young documentary film maker finds a kindred spirit, and a fascinating subject, in Keith Stata's cinema complex at Kinmount

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

KEITH STATA and Chris Hope have each come up with different ways of satisfying their passion for images on a screen.

One decided to build a movie theatre at his house on a hill in Kinmount so he and 1,000 other people a night can watch the movies in his five cinemas.

The other chose to ignore all the reports of layoffs at the CBC, plus anyone's qualms about his youthfulness, and sell his films to the national television station.

On October 19, their two paths will merge when CBC's Country Canada will air Chris Hope's documentary on Keith Stata's theatre.

When Stata was Hope's age, he wanted to be making movies instead of building a theatre so he could watch them. But not many movie directors get their start in Kinmount, and Stata wasn't prepared to move to the city to chase after a career which didn't have much financial security.

"The thought of having to go to the city and sell yourself and be a starving artist wasn't attractive so I stayed here and became a starving construction worker instead," he laughs.

Hope lives in the city but loves his cottage on Long Lake in the Highlands, and while he'd rather be here, he agrees with Stata that it's not a good place to start a career. So he's forgoing summer at the lake to work for the CBC television show, Country Canada.

Back in May, thankfully, he did have a work excuse to come up to the Highlands. He didn't make it as far as the cottage, though, because he was too busy producing his documentary about Stata's Highlands Cinema.

"The fact that Keith draws 1,000 people a night to his home in a town of 300 is enough of a story in itself," says the 22-year-old producer. It became an irritable story for the show's program director when Hope told him about Stata's 4,000 square-foot museum of movie cameras and artifacts — not to mention all the memorabilia Stata has stored in an additional 4,000 square-foot space, and five tractor trailers to boot.

Had the show's program director known that Hope was still a student at Ryerson Polytechnic University, however, the documentary might have remained a home movie for Hope and his friends to watch.

Hope first made a video about the theatre with his fellow students in the Radio and Television Arts program. Then, when he pitched the story idea to Country Canada, he conveniently forgot to mention that he was a student, not some independent freelance producer. When the CBC hesitated, Hope lowered his voice even more and said he had a couple of other people interested so if the CBC wanted him, it would have to act quickly. Once the CBC said yes, Hope felt safe enough to mention he still had another year at university to go. "Oh, s—," came the reply on the telephone.

After Hope came up with a CBC crew and filmed his second, more professional show, the discouragement was gone from the program director's voice. Pleased with the results, Country Canada asked Hope to produce eight videos this summer, and he plans to freelance for other programs.

"I've had three different bunches of students from Ryerson (come to the theatre to make a documentary) and most of them lack the ambition to complete it," Stata says. "Chris seems to have a lot more drive. I think he'll go places."

And that's before Stata has even seen Hope's show. A few minutes later, Hope arrives — he slept in at the cottage, the only place where he can sleep well — with a copy of the show, fresh from the CBC's editing booths. Stata pops it into his video machine and seconds later, "Movie Town" starts playing on his extra-large television screen.

The five dogs and four cats, relaxing in various forms of prostration on Stata's rug-covered chairs, barely blink an eye as they hear their owner's voice come over the television.

Hope starts by describing Kinmount, a scenic village with an old mill on a quiet river. Such serenity is as deceptive as the front facade of Highlands Cinema, which does indeed look like a house. It's not until Stata gets up on the roof and starts pointing to the massive sprawl of rooftop that you realize this is no ordinary house.

Like most people, Hope had thought a "50-seat theatre in the bushes would be quaint. I worked at Blacks Hardware (in Haliburton) for three summers and I always heard people talking about this place but I was never able to make it. Then I thought it would be neat to do a show on a guy who has a theatre in his living room.

"When I finally came in, it was incredible. I was overwhelmed. Keith took me on a tour and picked me off the floor every time I turned a corner."

As the thousands of patrons of Highlands Cinema know, it's not just a whole bunch of people gathering in Stata's living room to watch a movie on his big screen tv. We're talking big, big, screens - five of them, with at least 50 seats in each of the five theatres. The popcorn is real - and really fattening, as Stata has discovered to his chagrin - the seats fold up like they do in a real theatre, and what's even better, all the adorn-have to bring them into the theatre."

Promotion is equally important when you're starting a career in a highly competitive field. Hope has learned that he not only has to market his finished product, but also himself. But it's not ego that's drives him; he can't believe how much fun it is to make television shows.

"I started thinking I'd be a radio technician and I did that for three years at Ryerson. I was a diehard audioperson - I loved the texture you can put into sound. But I didn't realize how much I think in terms of pictures and composition. I have a passion for sequences and motion. It's a visual symphony."

"Radio itself is like watching silent movies," Stata agrees. "You only have half the marriage."

Hope is hoping to make other documentaries in the Highlands this summer, perhaps because he knows he might otherwise be too busy to make it up to the cottage, which his parents, Michael and Marion, bought in 1977.

Ah, the cottage. For the three years he worked at the hardware store, Hope enthusiastically immersed himself in Highlands life. He'd return to Ryerson each September wondering when he'd be able to make the drive to Haliburton again. "It's a place to escape to for sanity," he says, "even though there's 30 people there waterskiing. It's probably the most physically strenuous time I have, but it's relaxing. I actually like getting up early. It's the quiet, the peacefulness. The cottage is a universally attractive idea because it's so peaceful."

Not that he's willing to give up the job in Toronto just so he can spend more time on Long Lake. Any way, in the few weeks he's been at CBC, he doesn't feel as much as need to escape."

"Since I've been at the CBC, I feel like I've been on holiday but I've got twice as much work done."

"It's like the cottage in a job."

"Movie Town" airs on Country Canada October 19 at 1 p.m. You'll have to provide your own popcorn.

Filming at the Kinmount theatres ments which used to be found in old theatres but which disappeared in the era of functional cineplexes, are restored to their former glory. There are gargoyles on the walls and curlicues on the ceiling.

That's just the atmosphere in the cinemas. What makes Highlands Cinema even more appealing is the museum you must walk through. Mannequins are dressed in vintage clothes reminiscent of cinema's glamorous days, there's nearly every make and model of movie camera, from the 1958 model his parents gave him for his birthday to the Worlitzer used in Craven A commercials in the 1960s. New this summer will be a Zoltan fortune teller, and it might even be the one which was featured in the movie Big, with Tom Hanks.

"If we didn't have the atmosphere, people would go to Haliburton or Minden," Stata says of how a tiny town such as Kinmount can draw enough people from so far away to fill 1,000 seats a night. Last year 40,000 people came to the theatre because as Stata notes, "we made the theatre special enough that if you're having visitors, you

Successful banquet raises $15,000 for Ducks Unlimited

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Ducks Unlimited's expanding popularity helped the local chapter raise almost $15,000 at the recent banquet at PineStone.

"It was really successful," says local treasurer Bill Hutson.

Not only were local businesses once again very generous in sponsoring the prizes and auctioned art, but there were also more people attending the annual fundraising dinner.

The local chapter also got a big boost because many of the prizes, such as the grand prize of a weekend for two at Silver Eagle Resort in Eagle Lake, were outright donations, and didn't have to be paid for.

Hutson says Ducks Unlimited has grown beyond being a club for hunters and fishermen. Today, many naturalists and environmentalists also support the group for its initiatives in preserving and enhancing wetlands.

Much of the funds raised by Ducks

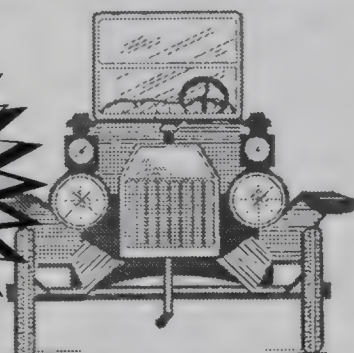

Unlimited go towards wetland improvements. In Ontario, some of that work is carried out by the Ministry of Natural Resources.

Haliburton is not in a main flyway for ducks, but there have been several small local projects sponsored by Ducks Unlimited, including marshland rehabilitation.

Ratepayers take Monmouth council to task over land sale

by KERRY RILEY
Special to the ECHO

The following are brief excerpts of items discussed during the October 6 Monmouth council meeting.

Seeing red over green space

The meeting was dominated by a community protest, led by resident Mary Barker, over the proposed sale of township property (Part Lot 33, C16, formerly block B 543) in Wilberforce. Approximately 40 people crowded the Council offices in support of Barker, as she presented a detailed and impassioned summary of their position.

Reeve argues it is "Better to sell the land now and ensure local benefit from the money."

The land was originally given to the township in the 1970s by the Holmes Drive subdivision developer and zoned recreational. In 1983, the Council of the time re-zoned it to Hamlet/Residential and planned to sell it. Residents protested and the issue went before the Ontario Municipal Board. The re-zoning was allowed but the land was not sold. The present Council recently revived plans to sell it. It was surveyed and public notices posted.

The delegation's major argument was that public land in the centre of town was an invaluable community resource with many potential uses, any of which were worth more to the life of the township than the estimated $30,000 the sale might generate. If, as had been suggested, this money was used to offset tax increases which Council fears may result from Provincial downloading, a one-time reduction of only $17/household would result.

The delegation was upset with council for implying, on a posted "Fact Sheet", that the sale of the property might be linked to financial support for a newly created park in Tory Hill. It was felt that this needlessly encouraged local rivalries and resentments and contradicted the tax-offset proposal.

The Tory Hill Park Committee was unaware of any plans for financial support from Monmouth Council. Committee representatives stressed that they did not wish to benefit at the expense of Wilberforce.

Council was also chided for not sufficiently publicizing the intended sale. Two current Council members were part of the 1983 council and aware of the controversy surrounding the land. (The intended sale was publicly posted and the prerequisite survey discussed at several open Council meetings. Upon receipt of a letter from Barker, final decision was delayed until concerns could be aired.)

In conclusion, a quick decision regarding the fate of Block B was requested. Barker asked that the zoning be returned to recreational, that recorded votes be kept on any motions pertaining to the block and that the documentation presented by her that evening be made a permanent part of the record.

Reeve Keith Tallman noted that impending amalgamations complicated the issue. He felt that Barker's belief in Monmouth's ability to retain control over its assets, post-amalgamation, was misguidedly optimistic. "Better to sell the land now and ensure local benefit from the money." In future, a "super council" could decide to sell it anyway and the proceeds would not necessarily be applied locally.

No final decision was made. Councillor Wren Hughes felt that a delegation of that size could not be ignored. Reeve Tallman commented that the protest, by its very nature, tended to represent only those who supported the organizer's (i.e. Barker's) position. Some time was needed, he felt, to canvas general ratepayer opinion. Further discussion was required, perhaps at an October 30 public meeting for an unrelated re-zoning application.

In other matters...

A resolution passed agreeing to pay about $20 in additional monthly air time fees associated with upgrades in the Community Policing radio equipment. Council resolved to notify the Ontario Video Lottery Corporation that Monmouth does not want video lottery terminals installed within its boundaries. Candidate's Night was set for Friday, October 17 at 7:00 p.m. at the Lloyd Watson Centre.

DEERHOUND LOST and FOUND

This year the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association is running a service for deer and moose hunters and any persons who may find a lost hound.

If you find a lost hound during this year's moose or deer hunt, first check the dog's collar for an identification plate with the owners name and phone number. If the dog has a number clipped or painted on it, you may contact the owner using the list below, or drop the dog off at a Lost and Found Centre. If the dog has no number you may drop the dog off at any one of the eight Deerhound Lost and Found Centres listed below.

If you are the owner of a lost hound and are not registered with the Association, you should call any of the Lost & Found Centres. At the end of this year's hunt, unclaimed dogs will be turned over to the nearest municipal pound. Following the hunt, please call your municipal office.

Camps registered with the Lost and Found should display their camp number at their road entrance. To claim your dog at a Lost and Found Centre you must provide proper identification and pay a $5.00 per day per dog boarding fee.

The Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association is an Association dedicated to the outdoor sport of hunting & fishing and currently has about 500 members. The Association thanks those individuals and businesses who have volunteered to act as a drop-off centre. If you wish to join the Association please contact Roy Boughner Jr. at 457-1926 .

Home is where the school is Lorelyn Morgan and Barry Wood strongly believe in their right to educate their two daughters at home

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

ONE DAY, Maradyn Wood happened to notice that many words in English were similar to words in French. With a nine-year-old's curiosity, she asked her mother, Lorelyn Morgan, why.

Morgan explained how the two languages shared a common past linked to Greek and Latin. The answer piqued Maradyn's curiosity even more, and with her mother, she started reading Greek mythologies and studying Latin.

In the mythologies, Maradyn noticed that the illustrations often included a lyre, so one afternoon, Maradyn made her own lyre out of cardboard and painted it green. By last week, she was putting on the second coat of paint and trying to decide what to use as the string.

Who knows what will happen this week. Will she want to find out if the lyre is the great-grandmother to the guitar? Will she want a primer in psychology so she can better understand the lessons the Greek mythologies have to share? Or will she want to go out on a clear autumn night and try to find the constellations which gave birth to the myths?

This sequence of events, says her mother, explains why it is impossible to set down a curriculum outlining what Maradyn is going to learn in the next year. Even a few weeks ago Morgan couldn't have predicted

Maradyn's interest in Latin and lyres, so how could she have included it in a curriculum? And if they had a structured curriculum, should Maradyn drop Latin because they are too busy with what had been planned?

All this leads to explaining Morgan's angry reaction to the school board's advertisement in The Echo which indicated that any parent who does not register their desire to home-school their child, and show they are providing a "satisfactory" curriculum, could be setting themselves up for legal repercussions.

"Where it really gets to me is the bottom line is it's not the board's job to determine whether my child is getting a satisfactory education if I say they are," she says. "The board is a public body to ensure that children who aren't getting an education elsewhere, get one in the schools."

To Morgan and her husband

Barrie Wood, the heart of the issue is a parent's right to make decisions for their child.

"Parents start making controversial decisions for their child before the child is even born," she says, sipping tea in the living room of their Eagle Lake home while Maradyn studiously applies herself to a workbook and her five-year-old sister Cavell either snuggles into their mother's lap, plays the piano, watches a video in French or works on a big felt board.

Should a pregnant mother undergo an ultrasound to see if there are potential problems? Should she breastfeed? How long should she breastfeed? Should the child go to daycare? And what does society do when a pregnant woman smokes, knowing such actions can lead to low birth weights and complications that cost hospitals tens of thousands of dollars? At what point does society have the right to interfere with parents' choices?

Morgan and Wood draw an analogy between the board of education's reaction to home-schooling and the duties and responsibilities of the Children's Aid Society. "The CAS could not say 'please submit how you're raising your children and ensure us you're not abusing them.' Or what if the local director of health says 'all vegetarian parents must submit their diet or be subject to prosecution'?"

Parents, they stress, simply have a right to make those decisions and to them, it's only the board of education which feels it has a right to interfere. (Board superintendent Dale Robinson says by law, all children are required to get an education until they are 16 and he needs some way of knowing that if a child's not in school, the child is not simply truant. He also says he has a legal obligation to ensure that the child is receiving a "satisfactory" education, and to him, that means making sure some sort of planned education is being followed.)

"There's a huge underground (of home-schoolers) but because of potential harassment, they tend not to be public," says Morgan. "You make your choice, it's the best for your family, and as soon as you make a public statement, you'll have the school board off saying they need input."

"Americans tend to think they have infinite rights until those rights are taken away by law. Canadians think we have no rights until they are given to us," her husband comments. "But the right you have to make choices for your children exists."

So why did the Wood family decide to home school?

Two years ago, Barrie Wood's role with the Mirvish production of Crazy For You brought him to Montreal for three months. The family, which had once lived in Eagle Lake but moved to Peterborough when he had first got a role in the Toronto production, decided the commute to Montreal was too long so the family went together. They applied for and received permission to take Maradyn out of school for three months.

Once in Montreal, Maradyn got to see the production from start to finish, from the day when the actors introduce themselves to one another, to the rehearsals, to the backstage machinations of lighting, sound and stage management. She even gracefully schmoozed until two in the morning at the opening night party. All the while, she kept a daily journal - in French - and followed the work she had brought along from school.

That fall, Wood thought the production was going on an extended tour, so once again, the family applied to the Peterborough board of education for a leave of absence. The board turned them down because this time, Maradyn would be away for too long, and Ministry rules say that in order for the board to receive funding, the child can only be away for a maximum number of weeks. The superintendent suggested they try home schooling.

By becoming their daughters' teachers, "it gives us an education that can be taken anywhere and any time," and such flexibility is vital if the family is to stay a family as Wood pursues his theatrical career.

However, for Wood to be able to perform, Morgan had to be willing to put her own successful theatrical career on hold. An actress, singer and dancer, she had to now be willing to be a stay-at-home mother and teacher. It turned out to be an easy decision.

"I had a career - I don't feel I have a lot to prove," she says. "And I really like my kids. It was very hard to give the responsibility for them away (to a school) for the best hours of the day."

"There are millions of reasons for home schooling and probably the one thing all these people have in common is that you really like your kids and like spending time with them."

So the family moved back to Eagle Lake, with Wood performing in Beauty and the Beast in Toronto for five days a week, and spending two days in the Highlands. (Now he is between roles and spends most of his time in Eagle Lake. When he's home, he too becomes a teacher, or as the Woods call it, a facilitator. The other day he made pancakes with Maradyn. Because they had the time, they could turn the experience into a math lesson: if the recipe calls for one and a half cups of milk, and you're increasing the recipe by half, how much milk do you need?)

Because Maradyn had been to school for three years, they first followed a structured program. Gradually, however, their daily scheduled evolved into something far more flexible but equally committed to learning.

Talking it over with Maradyn, they decided there were three "musts": she must practise piano, she must practise French and she must follow her typing tutorial. They also developed a "that's a good question" list. Whenever Maradyn asked about something her parents couldn't answer, they'd write it down. Then they'd take the list with them on their next regular trip to the library "and we learn it all together."

Maradyn, who was the type of student every school teacher loves — "she's amenable, she's cheerful, she's an independent worker and she loves learning" — is thriving as a home schooler.

For her, it's just as important to understand something as it is for her to learn something, and this is more possible when you and your sister are the only pupils.

"Let's take math for example," says Maradyn. "I want to know it because there might be times in my life I need to know it. I remember one time I didn't understand my math page and my teacher (at school) said this is how you do it and she did it for me. I said thanks and I wrote down the answers. Now, my mom asks me a few questions and if I still don't get it, she sits down and helps me and I'll try to do it... She's patient. She doesn't say 'why don't you get that?'"

"In a classroom with 30 kids," says Morgan, who's a qualified teacher and has taught in the school system, "no matter how much the teacher may want to, she doesn't have the time to let the kid discover things... The system can't serve all the people all the time."

And what about "Hurricane Cavell", who in the normal course of things, would have started kindergarten last month? Given her high energy level and independence, her mother says "two things could happen to her (if she went to school): she could be cowed and broken or she could terrorize the place and be a real problem." By staying at home, Morgan can tailor a program to Cavell's speed and interests.

But as soon as she makes comparisons between home schooling and regular schooling, Morgan is always quick to add "you don't want to do system bashing because the system has to exist." Not all parents can afford or want to have one of them stay at home to be a non-income generating teacher. The Woods have made financial sacrifices because they believe a greater good will be achieved, and because they like the lifestyle.

However, as soon as they say this, they also run against other parents' defensiveness about choices. Parent guilt is never far beneath the surface.

"When you tell people you're home schooling you get two reactions," Wood says. "The first is 'You mean you can do that?' The second is 'I couldn't do that because...' People take it almost as an accusation."

All they know is that home schooling as worked for them — their lifestyle, their interests and their desire to do things together as a family. How, they ask, does one fit that into a formula to be approved by a school board?

TAILORED PROGRAM: Cavell, who would have started Kindergarten last month, reads to her mother, Lorelyn Morgan. By staying at home, Morgan can tailor a program to her daughter's speed and interests.

Seniors' fundraising support shows heart

Congratulations to the Monmouth Seniors in their efforts to support financially the fund to purchase a heart catheter for Peterborough. They will give their donation to Linda Willcox Whetung who will make a presentation with slides about the heart catheter at their meeting on Tuesday, October 21 at the Lloyd Watson Centre. Everyone is welcome to attend the presentation which will begin at 1 p.m. Coffee and donuts will be served.

Friends and neighbours were saddened to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Hazel Angus last week. In her younger years, Hazel was an avid outdoors person who greatly enjoyed camping and canoeing. She retired to her country home in the heart of Wilberforce where her perennial gardens were much admired.

An independent lady, she was determined to be her own person, recovering from injuries suffered in a car accident and through a struggle with cancer. We will miss this proud, eccentric person, steering her walker over for the mail, out for some air and exercise, or finding someone to drive her car for her favourite drinking water from Dover's Spring.

The Lloyd Watson hall will be the place to be for candidates' night on Friday, October 17 at 7 p.m. Do come out to meet all the candidates running for election to Monmouth township council and the new school board (so far known as District 15 School Board).

Some fine items have already been donated for the OK Corral Monte Carlo Night. It's on October 25 at the Lloyd Watson hall which, of course, benefit from the funds raised. All the groups who use the facilities on a regular basis are involved in the event.

The Gentlemen of Song will be singing at St. Margaret's Anglican Church at the 9 a.m. service on Sunday, October 19. Everyone welcome. Refreshments and a time of fellowship after service.

Imagine getting your membership fees returned to you and being allowed free membership – just for having registered by a certain date. It's true. I had it happen to me two years ago at the Monmouth Curling Club. You could be the lucky one this year. Attend the House Party at the club house on Sunday, October 26 between 2 and 5 p.m. Register for curling in one or more leagues by that afternoon and your name goes in the pot for a free membership draw. Enjoy wine and cheese too. The executive has lined up a good number of leagues and bonspiels.

There are special rates for Intermediates (30 and under) and for students. Everything starts the week of November 9.

The people of this area are very proud of the Hughes family and their efforts. Good wishes go to David Hughes, already volunteering for a year in the Caribbean island of St. Vincent. He is working with youth from a high school there. He has completed two years at the Kawartha Lakes Bible College. Over the past months, he has worked at many jobs to earn money to cover his expenses as this is a non-paying position. Anyone wishing to help David, please contact Harold Lewis in Highland Grove.

Church closing vote hurts community

by ELEANOR COOPER
West Guilford News

It was a sense of dismay that St. Andrew's congregation met on October 5 to consider and vote on the recommendation to close the church. There will be an appropriate official closing ceremony near the end of November. Your imagination can supply how we feel in the circumstances, despite the inevitability of the course of action taken.

Valerie Leahy hosted a delicious lunch, potluck style, at her home (formerly Lorna Stackhouse's) last Tuesday. Lorna herself was there for the day and enjoyed visiting with her relatives – her niece Noreen Leahy and her daughter Valerie, her own daughter Norma Sisson, other nieces Geraldine Espie and Ella Smith, and Elva Cooper. It was a delightful way to spend part of another of those perfect autumn days.

Our sympathy to the Pouw family in their anxiety over their daughter Lyn, who's in Toronto Hospital after a terrible accident to her scalp while working with sod-cutting machinery. The hope is that her pain can be controlled while she recovers.

Costume dance in Dorset promises scary times

by PHYLLIS BRISCOE
Dorset News

What fun! There is going to be a Hallowe'en Costume dance at the Dorset Rec. Centre on Saturday, Oct. 25, with dancing to the music of that great disc jockey, Andy MacKay. A costume isn't mandatory but adds to the fun and there's prizes. The fun begins at 8:00 p.m. and goes on until 1:00 a.m. The cost is $5 per person. The dance is under the auspices of Tall Pines Snowmobile Club. Come out for a fun night.

Birthday greetings to Leanne Helpert, Bill Sears, Daniel Scott and Dave McKey.

Anniversary congratulations to Len and Audrey Whitworth who celebrated 53 years of wedded bliss on Oct. 12. Bas and Lorraine Weatherell have enjoyed 57 years of happy marriage and celebrated on Oct. 13. We wish them many more years of a happy life together.

An error in last week's news has to be corrected. In the article about Camp Dorset, a three was substituted for a two, erroneously stating that the camp was celebrating its 30th birthday, which of course is not true. They celebrated the camp's 20th birthday. No one wants to be made to look older than they are, even a camp!

The Dorset Library hours are Tuesdays 6:00 to 9:00 p.m.; Thursdays 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. and Saturdays 12:00 noon to 2:00 p.m. There is an excellent selection of good reading material with many instructional books on a variety of subjects. If you wish a special book and don't find it at the library, the librarian will procure it for you from another library. Just ask and make use of this excellent facility in our midst.

The people at the Dorset Rec. Centre are interested in getting a walking club started. If you are interested, come to the Rec. Centre on Monday at 10:00 a.m. No cost. Walking is a very enjoyable form of exercise and a lot of fun when you have company.

A group of relatives enjoyed a trip to Ottawa recently. Irene Clayton, her sister-in-law Joyce McKey, her daughter Barb Bevelacqua of North Bay and Barb's daughter Angela motored to Ottawa to visit Barb's daughter Amy, who is attending Carleton University. Of course, they did some sightseeing in Ottawa and surrounding area. They said that the colour along the way was spectacular.

We wish to congratulate Paul Greenaway and his wife Sheila David who became the parents of a baby boy weighing 8 lbs., 4 oz. on Sunday, Oct. 5. The baby was born at Bracebridge Hospital. Of course, big brother Cole and sister Bonnie are delighted.

Many people will remember the Gervais family, Alec and his late wife Simone who were residents of Dorset for many years. Alec was employed at the Forest Ranger School and Frost Centre for a number of years. After Simone's death, Alec decided to move to the province of Quebec, where he had relatives. I am sorry to report that Alec passed away recently at the age of 82.

FLOOD/BURGESS WEDDING: Scott ("Scooter") Burgess and Tracie Flood were married September 6 at Haliburton United Church. Rev. Harry Morgan officiated. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Wigamog Inn. The couple now resides in Toronto.

Seniors revel in beautiful fall scenery during county tour

by THE ROVING REPORTERS
Senior League, Hyland Crest

On Oct. 8 we had another countryside drive. This trip took us to Kinmount, Gelert and our own Minden area. We thoroughly enjoyed the beautiful scenery and once again marvelled at the colours. To top the day, the Grandfathers were here in the evening to entertain us.

A week ago we were pleasantly surprised by a visit from Margaret Anderson, R.N. Margaret was a nurse in our home and she was remembered by many of us.

The following day, our happy hour was enjoyed with the visit from the Minden Line Dancers.

Over the weekend, some special events took place. Judy Stevenson went home to celebrate her birthday and received a surprise party. Anne McKay visited her daughter where a birthday party took place for Anne's birthday. Also on the weekend, a few of us attended a surprise bridal shower for Andrea Barry, R.N. who is to be married on October 18. Bertha Hughes attended a bridal shower for her granddaughter, Carol Ann, at the Minden United Church.

The Salvation Army was here for their monthly visit on Oct. 6 which many of us attended.

The following day, quite a few of us indulged in some fish and chips and in the evening enjoyed our cards. Corinne and Pearl (our volunteers) were here to help us. The "Sarah Group" was here with their goodies for our tea party. This group consists of young women from the Minden United Church. We thank them for their time with us.

We're pleased to report that Jean Jennings is up and about. It is certainly good to see her. Also welcome back to Ruby Roberts from her stay in the hospital.

Twice a week, many of us attend "Keep Fit" and "Morning Stretch". It certainly helps us to exercise our bodies and we have fun. We are quite happy with our new restorative program and Linda, Jane and Nancy keep us on our toes. Thanks, ladies!

Eliminating drafts can save you money through a long winter

home likely represents the largest single investment you've ever made, doesn't it make sense to treat it to some tender loving care?

Check Windows and Doors

It's a good idea to start with a thorough check of your windows and doors. Cracks around these areas can let in chilly drafts while letting valuable heat out.

You can check for drafts quite easily by holding up a feather or a piece of tissue paper suspended by a hanger to the areas where you suspect there may be leaks. If the feather or tissue moves independently, you've located a draft.

To solve this problem, you can caulk or apply weather stripping. These can be purchased at your local hardware store under a wide variety of product names.

If your windows or doors are in extremely poor shape, you may want to think about replacing them altogether with energy-efficient alternatives.

Also make sure there are no drafts coming in around your power outlets. These should be properly insulated as well.

Synthetic Foams

For large gaps or holes, there are several varieties of synthetic spray-foams that you can buy. A small amount is squirted into the gap, and it expands to fill the hole. Excess material can then be removed. This dense filler is an ideal way to insulate around difficult, hard-to-reach areas.

When using any of these products, be sure to read the manufacturer's instructions and follow them carefully, because some substances can irritate skin and eyes.

Check Basement

Conduct the same draft test on all floors of your home — including your basement. And while you're down there, check around for any cracks or holes in the foundation walls. These should be repaired before they worsen. If you don't think you can handle the job yourself, consult an expert.

If your basement is unfinished and especially chilly, you may want to think about insulating the whole thing. Again, if you're not particularly handy, you may want to hire a contractor for this type undertaking.

Furnace or Boiler

While still in the basement, be sure to check your furnace or boiler. This, after all, is the hub of your heating system and requires regular maintenance to give you good performance. Ideally, it should be checked annually by an expert to make sure everything is in good working order.

It's advisable to try and book a checkup or cleaning with your utility or fuel company before the fall rush gets into full swing.

Also be sure and remove any items you may have stored near or around your furnace or boiler before turning it on. Make sure the space around it is clean and free of dust or combustible materials.

It's also a good idea to check your attic to see what kind of shape your insulation is in. It may need to be topped up.

ENERGY TIPS:

1. Seal leaks around doors, windows and other openings, such as pipes or ducts—with caulking or weatherstripping.

2. Set thermostats between 65 and 70 degrees in the winter, at least 5 degrees lower when sleeping, and at 58 degrees when away from home for more than a few hours. (Warmer temperatures are recommended for homes with ill or elderly persons or infants).

3. Set water heater temperatures at 140 degrees (at 120 degrees in homes with infants or elderly persons to guard against accidental scalding), and install water-flow restrictors in shower-heads and faucets.

4. Change filters or clean the filters in heating and cooling units twice a year. Close vents and doors in unused rooms. If pipes or ducts run through unheated areas, insulate them.

5. Check to see if attic and basement (or crawl space) have the recommended level of insulation.

6. If you have a wood-burning fireplace, consider installing a natural gas fireplace insert, which can save on energy costs compared with wood. A gas fireplace also will dramatically reduce the air pollution created from burning wood.

New certified professionals ensure wood appliance safety

The Wood Energy Technical Training Program (WETT) is administered by Wood Energy Technology Transfer Inc. (WETT Inc.), a non-profit association managed by a volunteer board of directors elected by the holders of WETT certificates. As the program's national registrar, WETT Inc. publishes the WETT reference manual, maintains the course documentation and issues certificates of qualification.

The courses are scheduled and hosted by regional affiliates whose affairs are managed by volunteer board of directors elected by the certificate holders in the region. These affiliates also maintain disciplinary programs to ensure that all wood energy industry certificate holders abide by the WETT code of ethics.

Heating with wood can be a very satisfying experience. There's nothing quite like the warm glow of a wood fire on a cold winter's night. But are you sure that your wood heat system is as safe as it could be?

Inefficient wood stove operation and poor stove design or installation can increase the amount of pollutants in the air. Improving your stove's combustion efficiency will automatically reduce wood smoke production. To reduce wood smoke, pay close attention to what you burn, when, where and how you burn it. A few simple steps can improve wood stove efficiency by up to 50%. This reduces harmful emissions and saves you both work and fuel dollars.

Ideas about wood heat safety have changed over the years. Until recently, it was often hard to get good advice on how to install a wood heating system safely. That is no longer the case!

Created over a decade ago, the Wood Energy Technical Training (WETT) program was designed to educate wood heat appliance retailers, installers, sweeps and inspectors.

WETT certified professionals, the graduates of the WETT Program, can give you up-to-date advice on safe installation, if you are buying an appliance or upgrading your wood heat system.

There's a whole team of people in your community – including your fire chief, building inspector, wood heat retailer and chimney sweep – who can help you make sure that your installation is safe.

WETT certified professionals can guide you through the choices in the marketplace creating a unique solution for your family living space – regardless of whether your goal is to cut your heating bill or add an inviting nook to watch a crackling fire.

WETT certified professionals are your local experts. They assess the size, layout and age of your home and advise you which appliances are right for your home, helping you avoid the costly and dangerous mistake of choosing a space heater too large for the space.

Good advice now right here at home

WETT certified professionals keep abreast of all new appliances on the market and can help you choose one of the many EPA certified appliances.

Certified appliances burn more cleanly and efficiently than most older models. WETT professionals can show you the right burn techniques to get the most out of your appliance.

Choosing the location of your appliance is an integral part of your future enjoyment of it – as well as having safety implications. WETT professionals have the experience necessary to help you make the right choice.

A safe installation will only stay safe if you operate and maintain it properly.

Check the chimney and flue pipe often for creosote build-up. Have them cleaned regularly.

Use properly seasoned wood and follow proper burning techniques to minimize creosote production.

Have a WETT certified professional check flue pipes for corrosion at least once a year – late spring, at the end of the heating season, is the best time. Replace any pipes that are beginning to corrode. Don't wait until there are holes. It may be too late!

Empty ashes frequently. Use a covered metal bucket for ashes. Store it carefully – either outside or on a concrete floor well away from walls or anything that could burn.

Check the door latches, hinges, gaskets and firebox parts of your appliance regularly to be sure they are tight.

Give your system an annual tune-up.

Be sure to follow the manufacturer's instructions for your appliance.

Creosote left in flue pipes and appliances can mix with humid air in the summer to form a very corrosive mixture. You can avoid off-season corrosion problems by thoroughly cleaning the system after the last fire of the heating season.

TIP #1

Use only properly seasoned dry wood. It will burn more cleanly and produce less creosote.

TIP #2

Never let the fire smolder. But don't get carried away building a roaring fire either. Your fireplace might not be able to take the heat! A steady burning, three log fire is best.

TIP #3

Never burn chemically treated wood, wrapping paper, magazines or other coated or coloured papers in your fireplace. These can give off noxious substances when burned.

TIP #4

If your fire's built properly using seasoned wood and your chimney is working well, you shouldn't need bellows.

TIP #5

Use a mirror and flashlight to inspect the damper. Never look directly up the chimney unless you're wearing proper eye protection.

An efficient combination:

Dual fuel, wood and oil furnaces are an ideal choice in the Highlands

Many Canadians are discovering that heating their homes with two different fuels is an economical alternative to conventional, single-fuel heating systems.

Oil and natural gas heating systems operate at their lowest efficiency in mild weather, such as in the early spring or late fall. Fuel economy can be improved by using more efficient sources of energy during these seasons.

For example, electric heaters installed in the plenum of forced-air furnaces can effectively supplement these units.

Soon after the furnace fan has started, heat is produced by the electric elements of the plenum heater. When the outside temperature falls below a certain level, the electric heater is manually or automatically shut off and the oil system takes over.

Manual control enables homeowners to decide when to switch from one energy source to another. Automatic systems feature either an outdoor sensor or a two-stage thermostat that monitors temperatures. The outdoor sensor triggers a change of energy sources when the temperature drops to a set level. A two-stage thermostat will make the changeover when the temperature inside the house drops to where the electric plenum heater can no longer meet the heating requirements of the house. Regardless of which mechanism is used, safety controls on the plenum heater ensure that it does not operate at the same time as the oil burner.

In some regions of Canada (particularly in older homes) oil-hot water (hydronic) systems are still used. These systems, which heat the house by distributing hot water to radiators in each room, can also use electricity as a supplementary energy source.

Dydronic-electric systems operate much the same as the oil-electric plenum heater combination. A small electric boiler is connected to the existing piping network. An outside sensor (or a two-stage thermostat) can be used to determine which boiler is used (the electric and oil boilers cannot operate at the same time). When the electric boiler can no longer satisfy the heating requirements of the house, it switches to the oil boiler.

Forced-air oil heating systems (and gas systems) can also work in combination with a heat pump. A heat pump removes heat from outside air and pumps it into the house. However, heat pumps generally cannot extract sufficient heat to keep a house comfortable after outside temperatures fall below freezing. At this point, a thermostat control on the heat pump activates the backup oil, electric or gas system. Factory-built, gas-assisted heat pumps are also available. With these units, the backup gas burner is located outside the house.

Wood is also a good source of energy for dual-fuel systems, especially since it is abundant and relatively inexpensive in Haliburton County. This versatile fuel can be used in combination with oil or electricity.

In a wood-oil system, the furnace burns wood and oil in separate combustion chambers. Oil is burned only when the wood fire produces insufficient heat or goes out. This is an ideal arrangement for homeowners who want to heat with wood but also want the security of a backup system.

Add-on wood furnaces and boilers are available for use with forced-air and hydronic oil systems. Make sure any system you purchase is certified by the Canadian Standards Association and is installed by a trained technician.

Wood-electric furnaces operate under the same principle as wood-oil furnaces: the electric heating elements supply heat only when the wood fuel cannot. In this case, electric heating elements are built into the plenum.

Electric baseboard heaters can also be used to supplement wood or wood-oil furnaces, and a central electric heating system can be supplemented by an airtight wood stove.

Ensure that whatever dual-fuel system you select is properly certified and installed by a professional, particularly if an add-on or wood-burning appliance is involved. If the complex installation specifications are strictly followed, these systems will operate efficiently and safely.

In a wood-oil system, the furnace burns wood and oil in separate combustion chambers. Oil is burned only when the wood fire produces insufficient heat or goes out.

Chimneys need care

As the heating season approaches, homeowners are reminded that the National Fire Code prescribes precautions regarding the safe maintenance of chimneys to avoid fire hazards. These precautions include annual inspections of the interior and exterior prior to each heating season.

Under certain conditions, the deterioration of a fireplace chimney can result in the development of a hazardous condition.

Most fireplace chimneys in use today are of two types:

- "factory-built" chimneys built from two or more concentric metal tubes with an insulating material, either air or mineral fibre;
- masonry chimneys built from brick, stone or concrete, with or without clay tile liners.

While "factory-built" chimneys are required to use metals which are highly corrosion resistant, it should be recognized that under certain conditions corrosion may develop. Recent reports have indicated that some factory-built chimneys, when attached to fireplaces, may be particularly prone to such deterioration. The reasons for this are not fully understood at this time, but the problem is under active investigation. It is believed that serious corrosion may lead to a safety or fire hazard.

Masonry chimneys may be subject to exterior erosion and leaching, exterior brick and mortar deterioration and to interior cracking of the tile liner, which may give rise to a safety or fire hazard.

It is highly recommended that annual inspections of all chimneys be carried out. Upon detection of a potentially hazardous condition, the inspector should advise the homeowner of the situation and recommend that he or she either contact the chimney manufacturer for factory-built chimneys or a local contractor for masonry chimneys. Until necessary repairs or replacements are made the attached fireplace or other appliance should not be used.

For a list of certified chimney sweeps and technicians in your area or for other information, please call the Canadian Wood Energy Institute at 1-800-563-5776.

New homes can incorporate many energy efficient options

Increasingly, professional builders are using environmentally responsible building techniques, materials and products to lessen the environmental impact of our homes and how we live in them. There is no better time to find out about the choices available than when you are looking for a new home, says the Greater Toronto Home Builders' Association (GTHBA).

Buying an energy-efficient home is one of the most important contributions that a

The R-2000 home is an environmentally responsible home that uses half the energy a conventionally built home consumes homeowner can make to the environment. Fifteen per cent of Canada's total energy consumption is attributed to heating the country's homes, and the vast majority of this energy is derived from non-renewable sources.

New homes are considerably more energy-efficient than homes built just 10 years ago, thanks to higher levels of insulation, advanced sealing techniques, improved windows and more efficient heating and cooling systems.

"High performance" windows with thermal resistance ratings of up to R-8 help to reduce the energy requirement of your new home. These windows may include triple or even quadruple-glazing; low emmissivity glass (low E) to let in the warmth of the sun while preventing the heat indoors from escaping; argon gas to increase the thermal performance of the window and heat mirrors between the layers of glass for superior insulating ability.

Consider selecting an energy-efficient heating system. Mid-efficiency furnaces, which are standard in new homes in Ontario, are 10-15 per cent more efficient than standard products. High-efficiency furnaces can provide close to 95 per cent efficiency and create up to 30 per cent less pollution than standard products.

Reduced environmental impact is only one of the many benefits of an energy efficient home. Home owners will enjoy the energy savings which can be significant over time; and increased comfort - even heat throughout the house, warm floors and no drafts.

The R-2000 home is an environmentally responsible home that uses half the energy of a conventionally built home and provides homeowners with a cleaner, healthier indoor environment. The R-2000 homes are built by specially trained builders, tested and certified so that consumers know exactly what they are buying.

In a typical household, washers, dryers, refrigerators, freezers, stoves and dishwashers account for approximately 15 per cent of residential energy consumption.

Many builders today include a full range of appliances with their new homes. Home-buyers should try to ensure that these appliances are energy-efficient and water-conserving; not only do energy-efficient appliances have less impact on the environment, they are also less expensive to operate.

Typically, energy-efficient appliances reduce energy use by 15 per cent. Recently, the market has seen the introduction of a new generation of appliances that are up to 48 per cent more energy-efficient than conventional appliances. Buying the full range of state-of-the-art appliances may cost approximately $900 or more; however, the energy savings can range from $180 to $250 per year.

'Energy-efficient lighting goes hand-in-hand with housing design that makes the most of natural light through lot orientation, interior layout and the use of windows and skylights'

Energy-efficient lighting is one of the easiest conservation measures you and your home builder can undertake. A compact fluorescent light bulb uses up to 80 per cent less energy than a standard incandescent bulb and lasts about 10 times longer. While energy-efficient light bulbs are more expensive initially, you can expect savings of up to $30 over the life-span of the bulb. Not having to replace burned out bulbs in hard-to-reach places like the tops of staircases and cathedral ceilings also makes energy-efficient light bulbs more convenient.

Dimmer switches and timers give you more control over the amount of energy you use for lighting. At the same time, you can create atmosphere for pleasant evenings at home, and increase security when you are out.

Energy-efficient lighting goes hand in hand with housing design that makes the most of natural light through lot orientation interior layout and the use of windows and skylights.

Conserving water makes both economical and environmental sense. A typical family of four uses more than 1,000 litres of water a day. The household toilet guzzles about 40 per cent of that; bathing and showering account for about 35 per cent and dish-washing and laundry account for another 20 per cent. Only about five per cent is used for drinking and cooking.

If you are buying a new home, ask your builder about water conserving fixtures and appliances.

But water conservation doesn't just end indoors. Careful landscaping can mean using even less water. Hardy, local strains of grasses and indigenous flowers and shrubs require less watering than more exotic kinds. Cutting back on the lawn area or eliminating it entirely in favor of patios and drought-tolerant plantings further reduces watering.

A mechanical ventilation system (heat recovery ventilator) will make your home healthier and more comfortable by providing fresh, filtered air from the outside and removing stale indoor air. At the same time, a heat-recovery device reduces energy use by capturing 50-70 per cent of the heat from the air being exhausted and transferring it to the incoming air.

The selection of environmentally appropriate building materials is growing rapidly: thermal insulation with used paper or recycled glass; ceiling tiles made from recycled cellulose fibres; and panel boards and laminate beams for efficient use of natural materials.

Wood stoves provide safe, comforting heat

... but proper installation, inspection are essential

ON A COLD fall or winter night, there's nothing better than to fire up a wood stove to provide enjoyable and efficient heat.

To maximize efficiency and safety, it is important to plan the construction of your stove carefully, have it approved by your local fire department and maintain it properly.

Ontario's Office of the Fire Marshall publishes an informative pamphlet on wood stove safety that is available at your local fire department. It outlines the wood heating system, fuel, installation, operation and maintenance.

Stoves, it says, are meant to heat only the room in which they are placed and it is important to install a stove that will produce an appropriate amount of heat for the room. Stoves that burn too hot or not hot enough may cause creosote to form on the inside of your chimney or flue pipe, creating a severe fire hazard.

The flue-pipe for a wood stove must be constructed of black iron as galvanized steel becomes too brittle when heated to the temperatures that result from burning wood.

Your chimney must conform to Ontario's Building Code Standards and should be approved by Underwriters' Laboratories of Canada (ULC) or Warnock Hersey Professional Services Ltd. Chimneys or vents designed for connection to oil- or gas-burning appliances cannot be used with wood-burning ones because they produce hotter flue gases.

Masonry chimneys should have a well-anchored metal or tile flue pipe collar to connect it to the flue pipe.

When installing your stove, remember that it will take more floor space than its actual dimensions because of the clearances needed to ensure safety.

First of all, your stove cannot be farther than ten feet (3 m) away from the chimney. A minimum clearance of 48 inches (120 cm) is needed between your stove and combustible walls. In cases where the stove is equipped with shielding, the clearance can be 36 inches (90 cm). These clearances can be reduced by placing a heat shield on the wall, spaced out from the wall one inch (2.5 cm) by non-combustible spacers. The heat shield must not be closer than one inch (2.5 cm) to the floor and three inches (7.5 cm) from the ceiling to allow a vertical flow of air and must extend one foot (30 cm) beyond the top and edge of the stove.

All wood stoves must be mounted on a non-combustible floor pad — such as a sheet of steel — that extends 18 inches (45 cm) beyond any other side.

The flue pipe should be kept as short as possible with no more than two 90-degree bends. Its length must not exceed ten feet and must not pass through a combustible wall unless an 18-inch clearance is provided between the pipe and the combustible. Flue pipes cannot be installed closer than 18 inches to a

BE SAFE: Test your smoke alarms regularly

Most fatal fires occur at night when people are asleep. While you are sleeping you can be overcome by smoke and never wake up. Seconds can make the difference between living and dying. Make sure that you and your loved ones are protected. Install and maintain a smoke alarm.

Smoke alarms detect smoke in the early stages of fire and sound a warning that will alert you and provide the precious moments you need to escape. These inexpensive, easy to install devices can save your life.

A smoke alarm should be installed in the hallway outside of every separate sleeping area and on each level of your home.

Smoke alarms must be tested regularly. Following these maintenance tips will help to keep your alarm in good working order:

- Follow the manufacturers recommendations as smoke alarms can differ. Generally, you should test your alarms weekly by pushing the alarm test button.

- Some alarms should be tested monthly with actual smoke. For example, one manufacturer recommends that a piece of cotton string be held with pliers and carefully ignited with a safety match. Extinguish the flame and hold the smoking string six inches below, and to one side of the smoke alarm. Blow smoke towards the smoke alarm's sensing chamber until the alarm sounds.

- Replace the battery once a year or when the low battery beep signal sounds once per minute. Use only those batteries which are recommended for your particular smoke alarm.

- If you are unable to test your smoke alarm yourself, have a family member or neighbour test it for you.

Wood should air-dry for at least a year

wall or ceiling unless similar protection is provided as for stoves.

No matter how well you construct your stove installation, you can't have a fire without fuel — in this case, wood.

Soft woods burn faster and hotter than hard woods and make excellent kindling. Hard woods burn more slowly and don't require replacement as often as soft woods.

Wet wood, whether wet from the elements or because it is freshly cut or young, gives off water vapours that eventually result in the formation of creosote in your chimney or flue which could catch fire and thus pose serious consequences. Wet wood is also inefficient because the heat that should be used for heating your room is used up to dry the wood.

Therefore, it is important to air-dry wood for about a year to remove most of the natural moisture in the wood. The drier your wood, the less creosote buildup will result.

When operating your stove, the Fire Marshall advises to always keep your draft control partially open to allow enough air to enter the stove while the fuel is flaming, reducing creosote formation. Before placing new wood on the fire, open the draft controls to allow more combustion air to enter, thus ensuring rapid ignition and thus, efficiency.

To further increase efficiency, remove ashes from your stove, frequently have your chimney cleaned, monthly if used regularly. Keeping a clean chimney will result in increased safety as well as efficiency.

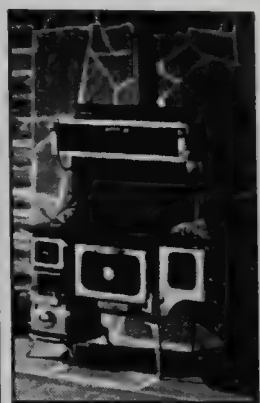

Also remember not to keep any boxes containing wood near the stove as sparks or heat may ignite them.

This information is intended only as a guide to using wood stoves. It is essential to follow all safety standards when constructing and using your stove. A permit from the municipality is required for chimney installations and all stoves must be installed according to the regulations contained in the Ontario Building Code and Fire Code (refer to the Canadian standards Code CSA-B365, Installation Code for Solid Fuel Burning Appliances and Equipment.)

It is also important to follow the directions included with the parts of your system during installation.

To have your wood stove or coal stove inspected, contact your local fire department or municipal office.

many friends and relatives for their support during Fred's illness and the days which followed. The many cards, phone calls, visits, gifts of food received, the beautiful flowers and your attendance at the wake, funeral and burial were so much appreciated. We thank the doctors and nurses for their excellent care in Peterborough, Kingston, Haliburton and Minden, also the Cancer drivers
- Arnolda and Ed Dykstra - for two trips to Kingston. Thanks to Jeff and Nadine for bringing Illa home, to them and sister Pat for the hours and nights spent with her. The Gordon Monk Funeral Home gave us all complete ease and satisfaction with their kindness and very efficient service throughout and we give them thanks. We had so many wonderful comments regarding the funeral service and we thank those who participated: Brian Parker, Minister;
Gordon Monk, eulogy; Barbara Trocewicz, reader; Ann McAdam, organist. The reception catered by St. Paul's ACW was excellent and we were so pleased that we could hold it right there at the funeral home. Thanks to one and all and may God bless! It was just the way Fred would have wished it.
